German Forces Capture 5000 Additional Prisoners in Their Pursuit of Defenders of Serbia.

By Associated Press.
SALONIKI, Nov. 18, via Paris, Nov. 18.—Field Marshal Earl Kitchener, the British Secretary for War, today conferred with Gen. Sarrahl, commander-in-chief of the French army of the Orient, and departed immediately without debarking.

BERLIN, via London, Nov. 18.—Two British gunboats have been sunk in the Mediterranean, off the Egyptian coast, by a German submarine. Official announcement to this effect was made by the Admiralty today.

The announcement says:

"A submarine on Nov. 6 in Sollum Harbor destroyed by gunfire two Anglo-Egyptian gunboats, the Prince Abbas and the Abdul Monem, each of which was armed with two guns. The same submarine silenced with its fire an armed British merchant steamer and captured its gun.

"One of our submarines on Nov. 5, on the North African coast, sank by a torpedo the British auxiliary cruiser Para."

Naval records contain the names of two Egyptian gunboats, the Prince Abbas and the Abdul Monem, each of which was built in 1902. The Prince Abbas, 290 tons, was built in 1902, and according to the latest naval records, was armed with one three-pound gun.

The Gulf of Sollum is on the north coast of Africa, at the boundary between Egypt and Tripoli.

AVIATORS DROP BOMBS ON VENICE

Austrian Squadron Attacks Military Establishments in Face of Heavy Fire.

VIENNA, via London, Nov. 18.—Venice has again been bombarded by Austrian aeroplanes. Official announcement was made today that an aerial squadron attacked military establishments of that city yesterday afternoon.

The announcement says:

"On the afternoon of Nov. 18, one of our seaplane squadrons successfully dropped bombs on the forts at San Nicola and Alberoni and the arsenal, aviation station, gas works, railway station and several barracks at Venice. Notwithstanding the heavy fire of anti-aircraft guns and attacks of three hostile aeroplanes, our squadron returned with complete safety."

5000 More Servians Captured by German Forces.

BERLIN, via London, Nov. 18.—The capture of 5000 Servians was announced by the War Office today.

BRITISH ATTACK AT DARDANELLES

Capture 280 Yards of Trenches—Gen. Munro Said to Have Advised Withdrawal.

LONDON, Nov. 18.—It transpired yesterday during the course of the debate in the House of Lords, that Sir Charles Munro, the recently appointed commander in chief in the Dardanelles, has already given his opinion as to what should be the future policy with regard to the Gallipoli campaign, and Lord Ribblesdale, who introduced the subject, said he understood that the report of the General favored withdrawal.

The Marquis of Lansdowne replied that the report and the evidence accompanying it was not considered sufficient to enable the Government to come to a conclusion. The statement had hardly been made when the war office issued an account of a successful British attack on the Turkish trenches on either side of the Krithia Nullah, which led to the belief that Lord Kitchener, who is on the peninsula and who went out after Gen. Murray's report had been received, had decided to persist in the operations.

The Turkish version of the Dardanelles fighting is contained in this official statement issued at Constantinople Tuesday:

"On Nov. 14 the enemy fired thousands of shells against our left wing near Inafarta and Seddul Bahr without important damage. On the 15th the enemy similarly bombarded our right wing and advanced positions in the center with land and naval guns for five

SWAT THE FLY-BY-NIGHT AUTO.

The first snow of the season fell in St. Louis about 11 o'clock last night. It was followed by a morning of rain, which fell heavily, for a few minutes, in different parts of the city.

In the West End between 8:10 and 8:35 a. m., the sleet fell so heavily as to cover the pavements for a time. At no time was the snow heavy enough to stay on pavements soaked with yesterday's rain.

The high wind during the night frequently reached a maximum velocity of 40 miles an hour. The lowest temperature was 34 degrees at midnight.

A thin coat of ice formed by 9 o'clock on the wood-block pavements downtown, causing horses to slip and fall.

Humidity at 7 p. m. yesterday, 97 per cent; at 7 a. m. today, 63 per cent.

Official forecast for St. Louis and vicinity: Clearing this afternoon; fair and colder tonight, the lowest temperature slightly below the freezing point, tomorrow fair.

Missouri: Fair tonight and tomorrow; warmer tomorrow.

Illinois: Partly cloudy and colder tonight, with snow flurries in northeast portion; tomorrow, fair with rising temperature.

200-POUND SAFE STOLEN IN CITY, RIFLED IN COUNTY

Strong-Box, Containing $35, Taken From Oil Station on West Pine, Found Near Carsonville.

A 200-pound safe was stolen last night from the office of the Pierce oil supply station, 302 West Pine street. The robbers removed a pane of glass from a rear door and unfasted the lock. The safe was about three feet in height and contained $35 in cash and some business papers.

About 9 o'clock this morning the safe was found by Joseph Buttz of Carsonville, St. Louis County, lying beside a road near Carsonville. It had been broken open and papers were scattered about. The money was gone.

About one month ago a safe was stolen from the residence of Dr. Herman L. Nietert, 3641 Russell avenue, and found later upon the levee in the northern section of the city.

BLIZZARD'S WOOING THAWED MISS SNOW AND THEY WED

Couple With Cold Names Met in July and Elope a Month

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 18.—Miss Besse Snow of Germantown was unable to withstand warm protestations of eternal affection by a young man she had known only a month and she eloped. Her new name is Blizzards—Mrs. George Blizzards.

It was early in July when Miss Snow became acquainted with Blizzards, a street car conductor. He called on her only once before their marriage.

On Aug. 9 they decided to marry, and Miss Besse Snow, without telling her mother, came downtown and met her beau. They took a train on the B. & O., on which to Elyton they did go. They kept the wedding secret until yesterday.

NEW INFORMATION AGAINST AUSTRIAN CONSUL OBTAINED

Government Says Important Disclosures in Strike Plots May Be Announced Soon.

INQUIRY BEING PUSHED

Further Indictments for Passport Frauds Are Expected Following New York Conference.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18.—The Department of Justice was today making further inquiry into the activities of Austrian Consul General von Nuber and his assistants. In an announcement the department said that information had been obtained which probably will lead to further indictments for passport frauds.

Von Nuber and German Ambassador von Bernstorff were recently charged publicly by Dr. Joseph Gorlick, former Austrian Consul, with having directed propaganda carried on by the Austro-Hungarian consular service in the United States for fomenting civil war in munition plants.

These allegations already have been formally denied by the Austrian embassy here and through the embassy by the Austrian Foreign Minister.

The investigation is the outcome of a conference in New York on Wednesday between A. Bruce Bielaski, chief of the Bureau of Investigation of the Department of Justice and Dr. Gorlick.

The department's announcement follows:

"Mr. Bielaski, chief of the Bureau of Investigation of the Department of Justice, returned after his visit to New York during which he conferred with Mr. Rathbone, editor of the Providence Journal, and Dr. Gorlick. While Dr. Gorlick may not be able to testify directly to all matters under investigation, much information of a valuable nature was obtained concerning the activities of Austrian Consul-General von Nuber and his associates, the details of which can not be disclosed at present. Prompt investigation, however, will be made. Information also was obtained which probably will lead to further indictments for passport frauds."

A dispatch was received yesterday from Baron Burian, Austrian Foreign Minister, by Baron Zwiernicki, in charge of the Austrian legation here, as follows:

"According to Reuter (Reuter Telegram Co.), former Austro-Hungarian Consul Gorlick has made totally false statements in Providence Journal about Austro-Hungarian and German espionage in the United States. You are authorized to make categorical and official denial to these inventions."

PARIS MODISTES WON'T DEAL WITH 'AGENT' FOR MRS. GALT

Decline Orders of New York German Would Send Given Direct With Compliments.

PARIS, Nov. 18.—The Paris Dressmakers' Syndicate has blacklisted two American customers of German origin, one of them named Kurzmann, reputed to have been commissioned to buy goods for Mrs. Norman Galt, who is to be the bride of President Wilson, according to the newspaper L'Ouvre.

The newspaper avers Kurzmann has threatened to raise a diplomatic issue because of the modistes' refusal to accept orders from him. L'Ouvre declares, however, that each house from which he ordered gowns has offered to supply them with its compliments to Mrs. Galt without having them pass through the hands of an intermediary.

A Paris dispatch early this month said that Charles Kurzmann, of New York was there to select gowns for the wedding of President Wilson and Mrs. Galt.

American Schooner Hits Mine.

LONDON, Nov. 18.—The American schooner, Helen V. Martin, has struck a mine. She is now at anchor. The Helen V. Martin is a three-masted vessel of 2255 tons. She sailed from New York, July 27, for Archangel, Russia, where she arrived Sept. 13.

BRITAIN, FRANCE AND RUSSIA URGE CHINA TO BE ALLY

Entente Exerts Efforts at Peking to Prevent Friction Between China and Japan.

NO MILITARY AID ASKED

Admiration Among Japanese for German Armies Said to Figure in Situation.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18.—Great Britain, France and Russia have united in an effort to add China to the entente alliance in order to prevent possible friction in the future between Japan and China and to preserve the peace of the Far East. If China agrees to the plan, military participation in the present war is not expected.

Negotiations thus far are in conversational stage at Peking with no indications as to China's attitude. Although the United States is being kept informed, its diplomatic representatives at Peking and European capitals are refraining from participation.

This turn in Far Eastern affairs on the eve of the proposed change by China from a republic to a monarchy has been the subject of confidential exchange between the allied Powers during the last week, but only became known here today.

Japan Not Consulted.

Japan, so far as is known, has not been consulted, the conversation thus far having been confined to the European entente allies and the Peking Government. If Japan knows of the plans unofficially, there is nothing here to indicate what her position will be.

Although Great Britain, France and Russia joined Japan in representations to China to postpone the establishment of a monarchy because it was thought a change during the present disturbed condition of affairs might provoke revolution and international complications, this latest step by the allies is understood here not to have been initiated because of the monarchical situation alone. It was considered essential by the allies that such arrangements be made in the Far East as would permanently safeguard the interests of the United States.

The impending change in China's form of government has made the situation somewhat acute. Fear of revolution in China and the possibility of Japanese interference to preserve peace have been impressed upon Japanese officials to an extent that has attracted wide attention among the European diplomats.

By joining the entente alliance, none of China's operations could affect the future of the Japanese empire, but the move would effectively guarantee Japanese abstention from interference in China. Japan's attitude is not clear as yet, but two possibilities are considered here as plausible. First, that Japan will join in the movement, and second, that Japan will remain aloof from any agreement, viewing even the future of the Chinese empire as a threat to her paramount interests in the Far East.

Chinese Diplomats Favor Plan.

The origin of the move enlists China on the side of the allies is not yet known here, but there are indications that some Chinese diplomats are inclined very favorably toward it as it would favor the stability of the nation and the establishment of the national Government. The indications are that efforts to add China to the allies resulted largely from the supposition that the changing of the Government to a monarchy would result in the Chinese Foreign Office that in the duty of the allied Powers in order to prevent possible complications between Japan and China to act definitely.

The attention of the British, French and Russian consuls in the Far East has been attracted by reports of the German treatment afforded to German prisoners at Kiao-Chow and the words of admiration for the German armies frequently spoken in Japanese newspapers of high standing. These have been interpreted by the allies with much interest as well as occasional adverse references in the Japanese press to the Anglo-Japanese alliance.

It is known that Germany recently enlisted her efforts in the same direction as Japan to persuade China to abandon her change of government. Advice from the far east declare that the German Minister at Peking pointed out to the Chinese Foreign Office that in the event that China changed her form of government, she might not obtain the recognition of the Powers, and without this recognition she could not very well be taken care of diplomatically in the peace conference that will end the European war.

It is thought in some quarters here that the idea of joining China to the Entente Alliance may have appealed to Great Britain and Russia particularly because of the reports of German propaganda being carried on from China to disturb India and Persia.

Comment was withheld by American officials here today. It was declared that conflicting affairs relating to the peace conference that will end the European war would not be a proper subject for discussion.

$5,000,000 FOR REORGANIZERS OF FRISCO RAILROAD

Proposed Plan Permits Them Profit of 15 Per Cent on $25,000,000 of Bonds.

COMMISSION $1,000,000

Pay for Expenses Besides and Syndicates Are to Absolutely Control Company.

FINANCERS in New York City who, under the proposed plan of reorganization of the Frisco Railroad, will arrange for its financing to the extent of $25,000,000 stand to gain more than $5,000,000 in addition to having absolute control of the railroad. This is revealed by a study by a Post-Dispatch reporter of the reorganization plan submitted 10 days ago to the Missouri Public Service Commission.

J. & W. Seligman & Co. and Speyer & Co., two of the firms, long have been interested in Frisco financing, the Speyer company has been interested in many of the deals in which in 10 years the Frisco lost $22,000,000 through the sale of its securities at large discounts.

Under the reorganization plan submitted to the Missouri Public Service Commission 10 days ago the two banking firms will be reorganized managers, and with the Guaranty Trust Co. of New York and Lee, Higginson & Co., will compose a "purchase syndicate" to supply the $25,000,000 cash which it is estimated the reorganization will require.

This "purchase syndicate" will receive 4 per cent, or $1,000,000 commission, on $25,000,000, thus leaving only $24,000,000 in actual cash which will go to the railroad.

Stock to Be Given With Bonds.

For the $24,000,000, the "purchase syndicate" will receive $25,000,000 of prior lien mortgage 5-year-cent bonds, and $17,000,000 common stock, the bonds to be sold at par to the holders of the old Frisco stock, and the stock of the reorganized company to be delivered to present holders of stock who buy bonds.

Although the bonds are to be sold to stockholders at par, the "purchase syndicate" does not promise to deliver them, but reserves the right to withhold them from delivery and to settle with the stockholders on a basis of 50 cents for the dollar.

For illustration, if the holder of 10 shares, or $1000 worth of old Frisco stock, wished to participate in the reorganization or seek to derive anything from his holdings, he must deposit his 10 shares with the reorganization managers with $50, or $5 for each share. He then elects whether he will pay the full purchase price for the bonds allotted to him under the plan.

If his stock is first preferred stock he will be permitted to purchase $200 of prior lien mortgage bonds and he will receive $1200 of common stock of the new company. If second preferred stock, he will be permitted to purchase $500 of the bonds and receive $1000 of common stock in the new company. If common stock, he will be permitted to buy $500 in bonds and will receive $500 of common stock in the new company.

No Delivery Time Specified.

The reorganization managers, however, are not required to deliver the bonds at any specified time, but may deliver them when they please. The stockholder already has paid $5 toward each $50 bond he is to get, and before he can get the bond he must pay $5 more.

If before the time set for delivery the reorganization managers have been able to sell the bonds at par, they are permitted to settle with the stockholder on a basis of 50 cents, thus making a clear profit of 15 per cent.

On the $25,000,000 of bonds held by them, this profit would amount to $3,750,000. If they were able to sell the bonds at any time above 50 cents they would make such profit as the amount was above 50 cents. Having received their $50, 70,000,000 of stock free they would be out nothing in giving it to the stockholders with the bonds sold.

If the bonds brought par, the financiers' profits plus the $1,000,000 commission for handling the deal would be $4,750,000.

In addition to these incomes the plan provides that Speyer & Co. and the Seligman company may be parties to all syndicates.

Also a "Loan Syndicate."

Besides the "purchase syndicate," there is a "loan syndicate," which agrees to loan to the "purchase syndicate" up to 50 per cent of the face value of the bonds.

There is a provision for the payment of the reorganization managers for their services, and for the payment of compensation to the various syndicates, and their expenses.

Persons who have examined the plan say these extra commissions would unquestionably bring the returns of the New York financiers far in excess of $5,000,000, and probably in excess of $6,000,000.

DEATH OF BABY LEADS TO ARREST OF MAN AND WIFE

Chiropodist Is Held in Edwardsville for Practicing Medicine Without License.

Following the death last night of the 17-month-old child, William, of Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Determan of East Orchard street, Edwardsville, Charles Scholes and his wife, Mrs. Philippa Scholes, were arrested today on warrants charging them with practicing medicine without a license.

Scholes and his wife are said to have been treating the child in the south end of Edwardsville. Mrs. Scholes treated the Determan child. No complaint has been made by the Determans, who say they are satisfied with what she did for their child. The warrant was issued at the instance of William Ohren, who says Scholes has been treating two of his children.

Determan said today the child had been ill since its birth. Mrs. Scholes had been treating it for a year by rubbing it with oils and liniments. She administered no medicine, he said, and charged no fee, accepting whatever was offered in compensation.

Ohren says he has receipts showing payments to Scholes and bottles containing medicines prescribed by him.

Members of the Madison County Medical Society are taking an interest in the case. Dr. R. D. Lister of Granite City, a member of the State Board of Health in Edwardsville, today dismissed an action brought by L. M. Johnson of Louisiana and other negroes against the Government to recover more than $68,000,000 which they alleged was due to their ancestors as slaves for involuntary servitude in connection with Federal handling of cotton during the Civil War.

RIGHT TO ENTER STREET CARS AT FRONT IS UPHELD

Judge Hogan Discharges Man Who Was Arrested When He Refused to Go to Back Door.

Passengers willing to pay fare have a right to enter United Railways cars by the front door, according to a decision by Judge Hogan in police court today. He discharged John C. Ohren, 3706 Wyoming street, charged with disturbing the peace and resisting an officer, when he was refused admission at the front door of a Grand car at Gravois avenue last night.

Other a salesman, said that, when the car stopped, several men had right to get on at the front door, if willing to pay fare, and it was the conductor's duty to go to his seat and collect his fare. He then dismissed both charges against Ohren.

Ed Rowan, secretary of the local Industrial Workers of the World, claimed Hillstrom's body. He intimated it would be sent to Wyoming for burial, as requested by Hillstrom in a telegram to W. D. Haywood yesterday.

Telegrams were received this morning asserting that William Busky of Seattle had made an affidavit that he was with Hillstrom the night J. G. Morrison was murdered and that Hillstrom was innocent. They were from O. N. Hilton of Denver, one of Hillstrom's attorneys. The Sheriff was requested to postpone the execution until this statement could be investigated. Warden Arthur Pratt of the prison then asked Hillstrom if he knew Busky and Hillstrom answered that he did not. The Sheriff was then directed to proceed with the execution. Dispatches from Seattle said no "William Busky" could be found in Seattle directories.

None of Hillstrom's I. W. W. friends were present. The law provides that not more than five friends of a condemned man may be present if their presence be requested by him. Hillstrom declared last night that he did not wish any of his friends to see the execution and a committee of the I. W. W. was accordingly denied admission to the prison.

Under the laws of Utah Hillstrom was allowed to choose between shooting and hanging.

Hillstrom declined to see a minister, saying he had worked out his own religion, was satisfied with it and could not be helped by a minister.

Although he continued to protest that he could prove his innocence, if granted a new trial, Hillstrom remained silent about how he had received a bullet wound in the chest and where he was the night J. G. Morrison and Morrison's son, of whose murder Hillstrom was convicted, were shot and killed in Morrison's grocery in Salt Lake City.

"It is nobody's business where I got that wound," Hillstrom said. "It is only public curiosity that wants to know that. I am not here to gratify public curiosity."

Industrial Workers of the World held a meeting last night at their hall and another in the street. Attendance was no heavier than usual and the remarks of the speakers were mild. Hillstrom had been not only an active leader in the organization, but its poet and song writer.

Officers are much perplexed by an incident that developed last night. Hillstrom had expressed a desire to wear a dark suit which had been under lock and key with his other effects. Deputy Warden A. C. Ure of the State prison brought out the suit and examined it preparatory to having it pressed. He discovered the name "Morrison" written in indelible ink on the white lining of the suit.

When he told Hillstrom that he had found a name on the suit, Hillstrom inquired whether the name was "Morrison" and said he believed it had been placed there by "some detective at the county jail." Hillstrom said the suit was bought for him by a friend after his arrest.

The suit, however, officials say, was much too large for Hillstrom. Mrs. Morrison, widow of the murdered man, said her husband had a similar suit and that the writing resembled that of her husband, but she was unable to identify the suit positively as having belonged to her husband.

Governor's Reply to President. Gov. Spry, in his telegram to President Wilson, declining to interfere, pointed out that at the President's request, one respite, from Sept. 20 to Oct. 16, had been granted to give the Swedish Minister an opportunity to present his views. He said that the only subsequent representation from the Swedish Minister was a request for commutation "for the sake of humanity and comity usually practiced between nations."

The Governor said that, because of the absence of any showing in Hillstrom's behalf, the pardon board had declined to appear before the Pardon Board Oct. 16 and his attorney admitting he had nothing new to offer, Hillstrom was resented to be shot Nov. 19.

The second communication from the President asking for a reconsideration of the case because of its importance, the Governor termed an "eleventh hour request." He said the President's "interference" had elevated the case to undue importance and it had had more painful consideration than any other case in the history of the State.

The Governor asserted that the impatience that the convict had not had justice was not warranted, as he had been represented by three sets of attorneys. He added that he had not been acquainted with the record of Hillstrom's guilt.

The telegram said it was significant that "those only are appealed to who have no knowledge of the facts and whose only demand of clemency who are prejudiced in Hillstrom's favor or who demand his release, regardless of his guilt." He said that he was convinced the President's request "must be based on a misconception of the facts or that there is some reason of an international nature which you have not disclosed."

News of Gov. Spry's action was conveyed to Hillstrom soon after the Governor's message had been sent to the President. Hillstrom received the news without comment.

"Will Not Beg for My Life." "This is my busy day," he told reporters who called on him in the afternoon. "I am not afraid to die, because I have nothing to fear. I wanted a new trial, to prove my innocence. I am now going down on my knees to beg for my life. It won't do me any good to make a statement. They will call me a liar any way."

When he was urged to tell something about his family, he said: "I guess the family will be extinct tomorrow. Hillstrom declined an offer of stimulants from the prison doctor, but asked for a bottle of grape juice, which was given to him.

He sent several farewell telegrams. One addressed to W. D. Haywood, secretary-treasurer of the I. W. W., Chicago, read:

"It is a hundred miles from here to Wyoming. Could you arrange to have my body hauled to the State line to be buried? Don't want to be found dead in the State of Utah."

Another telegram to Haywood read:

Swedish Subject Executed by Utah Firing Squad

"JOE" HILLSTROM

"Good-by, Bill. I will die like a true rebel. Don't waste any time in mourning—organize."

A message to Elizabeth Gurley Flynn, New York, read: "Composed new song last week with music dedicated to the dove of peace. It's coming and now, good-by, Gurley. I have lived like a rebel and I shall die like a rebel."

Grocer and Son Were Murdered.

Hillstrom was convicted of the murder of John G. Morrison, a grocer of Salt Lake City, and his son, Arthur, 17 years old, at Morrison's store in the southern portion of the city about 9 o'clock on the evening of Jan. 16, 1914.

The shooting was witnessed by Merlim Morrison, another son, 14 years old. According to Merlim's story, which was corroborated on many points by other evidence, two masked men entered the store with drawn pistols, and saying: "We've got you now," opened fire on Joan Morrison, who fell mortally wounded with a bullet through his chest. Arthur Morrison ran to an icebox in the store, seized a revolver, and fired. Before he could shoot again, he fell pierced by three bullets, and died almost instantly. The masked men ran out of the store, one of them exclaiming that he was shot, and were observed in the street running toward the store. The surviving son, Arthur, fled toward the south of Morrison's store. Hillstrom had staggered into the doctor's home two hours after the shooting, with a bullet wound in his left lung. He told the doctor he had been shot in a quarrel over a woman, and requested that nothing be said regarding his visit or wound.

Evidence Against Hillstrom. When the doctor was treating Hillstrom for the wound, he found in Hillstrom's pocket an automatic pistol of the same caliber as the shells found in the grocery after the shooting. Hillstrom threw the weapon away, after leaving the doctor's home. Blood was found at several places between the store and the home of the doctor, and members of the family where Hillstrom lived said a companion had visited him late the night of the murders, talked privately with him and left. This man was not apprehended and has not been heard of since.

Merlim Morrison, the boy, because of the masks and confusion of the shooting, was not able to identify Hillstrom except in a general way, saying that Hillstrom's size and clothing were like those of one of his father's slayers, but another witness gave a minute and particular description of Hillstrom as one of the assassins seen in the bright moonlight and near an electric arc lamp snow on the ground made it all the lighter at the time. Hillstrom also was identified as a man who had visited the store the afternoon of the murders and talked with Morrison.

Morrison had a wife and five children, besides the boy who was killed with him.

President Expresses Regret in Reply to Helen Keller's Plea. BOSTON, Nov. 18.—Miss Helen Keller, who sent telegrams to President Wilson and Gov. Spry of Utah, asking a stay of execution for Hillstrom, received the following telegram from the President last night:

"I was very much affected by your telegram and wish most sincerely it was in my power to do something, but unfortunately there is nothing I can do. The matter lies entirely beyond my jurisdiction and power. I have been deeply interested in the case, but am balked of all opportunity."

ATKINSON WON'T REPLY TO MAJOR'S RATE CRITICISM

Governor Declares He Has Not Discussed With Chairman Subject of His Resignation.

Special to the Post-Dispatch. KANSAS CITY, Mo., Nov. 18.—Gov. Major, after repeating here today the criticism he made yesterday in Jefferson City of the Public Service Commission for its decision increasing railroad rates in Missouri denied a rumor that he considered asking members of the commission for their resignations.

He also said he did not discuss with Chairman Atkinson the question of his resignation on the ground that he is a candidate for the Democratic nomination for Governor.

The situation in State politics resulting from the rate decision is an unusual one. The Governor's criticism of the commission was followed last night by Senator James A. Reed with a further criticism. They are rival candidates for the United States Senate. Senator Reed said:

"It's a solemn thing to contemplate when a board overturns a statute of the State and overrules a decision of the Supreme Court of the United States."

Gov. Major, asked why he disapproved of the decision, said:

"I haven't had time to go over the decision in detail, so I am not prepared to make a formal statement other than to say that I cannot approve the commission's decision."

The Governor indicated that he based his disapproval on his knowledge of the rate situation, gathered in handling the appeal of the 2-cent fare case and the maximum freight rate laws in the United States Supreme Court; that he believed the Supreme Court had held that the 2-cent passenger fare was not confiscatory and the commission was going in the face of that decision.

Chairman Atkinson, before leaving for Holden, Mo., where he has a hearing, would not discuss Gov. Major's criticism of the commission's action or reports of friction between himself and the Governor. He said the opinion spoke for itself; that it had been carefully prepared by John Kennish and H. B. Shaw and concurred in by the commission, and represented the commission's view after a full and comprehensive investigation of the railroad situation in Missouri.

Spirited Artillery Firing in Alsace; Bombs Dropped on Lunville. POLICEMEN HELP MRS. NOLKER FIND MISSING ARTICLES

Maid Returns Silk Net and Ribbons; Cigarette Case Recovered in a Closet.

Mrs. Robert E. Nolker of the St. Regis Apartments, 484 Lindell boulevard, will try to get along without the Christmas gifts which an affectionate housemaid says she meant to make for her. She will also try to get along without the maid.

The servant's secret was revealed when Mrs. Nolker summoned two policemen yesterday afternoon to investigate the disappearance of two yards of silk net, one and one-half yards of black silk ribbon and a gold cigarette case bearing the initial "N."

The policemen proposed that the maid's room be searched, and Mrs. Nolker says she offered no objection to this plan. The search was rendered unnecessary by the maid's sudden announcement that she would produce the lost ribbon and silk. She said she knew nothing about the cigarette case.

"See," the girl announced, as she spread out the dry goods before Mrs. Nolker and the policemen. "I had them in my dresser. I was going to make them into Christmas presents for you."

"Can you beat it?" one of the policemen murmured, as Mrs. Nolker indicated to them that they would not be needed any longer. She telephoned to the Newstead Avenue Station several hours later, saying that the missing cigarette case had been found in a closet, under a pile of newspapers.

Mrs. Nolker told a Post-Dispatch reporter today that she would not prosecute the girl, whose name was given as Helen Gardner. She is 24 years old, and is from Granite City, and had worked in the Nolker apartment for five months.

Mrs. Nolker is staying at the St. Regis with her sister, Mrs. Mabel Teasdale. Her husband, who is living apart from her, has been out of the city for more than a month.

WOMAN CHARGES HUSBAND WAS ILL TREATED AT CITY HOSPITAL

Superintendent of Institution After Inquiry Declares That Doctors Properly Handled the Case.

The Complaint Board made public today a letter it had received from Mrs. Amalie Laffin of 200 Oregon avenue, in which she complained of the treatment received by her husband, John Laffin, who was admitted to the city hospital. Both of Laffin's legs were broken and three of his ribs fractured as the result of falling from a scaffold Nov. 1.

Mrs. Laffin wrote that Dr. Vincent Jones of the city hospital staff had cut off the plaster casts from her husband's legs when she notified him that she was dissatisfied with the treatment and intended removing her husband to St. Anthony's Hospital. She also said that Dr. Jones said the lacerations were a handgrip around his chest had been removed.

Supt. Pringle of the city hospital, after an investigation, announced that Dr. Jones had given Laffin the proper treatment. Dr. Jones said the lacerations were taken from the chest two days before Laffin left the hospital, so as to enable physicians to watch pus forming there. The plaster casts, he said, were slit, as is ordinarily done, to enable the surgeon to call into the case to see the wound.

Dr. Edward H. Eversmann, now in charge of Laffin's case at St. Anthony's, said the city hospital doctors had handled the case properly, with the exception that he believed it would have been advisable to have placed on gauze bandage on the chest before permitting the patient to be transferred to another hospital.

CORONER FIRES EMPLOYE FOR CRITICIZING SCHOOL GIRLS

Chicago Statistician Wrote Welfare Worker Concerning Conduct of Advanced Students.

CHICAGO, Nov. 18.—Peter M. Hoffmann, coroner, today notified Edward Sercombe, supervising statistician of the coroner's office, that his statements and letters regarding lax conditions among girls in Chicago high schools were "unsubstantiated."

Sercombe is said to have given Mrs. Leonora Z. Meder, former head of the city's Welfare Bureau, information on which she based a statement that 350 high school girls are wronged yearly in Chicago.

Sercombe said he did not base his letter to Mrs. Meder on statistics, but on assertions made by speakers at meetings of women's clubs.

Judgment for "Salted Mine" Raver. RENO, Nev., Nov. 18.—Senator William Elmer of Pittsburgh has obtained a judgment against the Twenty-One Mining Company of California and its directors for $25,000 as the result of an alleged fraud on the part of the company to sell "a salted mine" to him. The money was advanced as the first payment on a $250,000 option.

SLEEP INDUCERS PRESCRIBED FOR HOTEL INSOMNIACS

Bed Maker Tells Hostelery Men in Convention How to Put Guests in Slumberland.

J. Leo Ryan, president of the Upper House of Common Council, Kansas City, and a bed manufacturer, this afternoon, at the convention of the Missouri-Kansas-Oklahoma Hotel Owners' Association at the Planters' Hotel, told the 250 members present of things they might suggest to insomniacs in their effort to woo sleep.

Ryan believes there are many things which can be used to induce "tired nature's sweet restorer" to work. He said that if his rules were faithfully observed, anyone might rest nightly in sleep and arise in the morning to bestow blessings upon "him who first invented sleep," if not the hotel man who told him how to sleep.

Run Around the Bed. The best thing to do when nature refuses to seal the eyelids is to follow the example of "rare Ben Jonson," Ryan declared. First remove the clothing, then move the bed into the center of the room, and run around it full speed at least 15 times. This of itself will bring a slight exhaustion, if the guest is not an athlete. Then switch out the light, jump in bed, free the mind of worry, and turn on one side, and dream of heavenly gates and twanging harps. Avoid sleeping on the back, as this is productive of nightmares, Ryan said.

If this formula should fail to work, take a prolonged hot bath, drink a glass of hot milk, relax muscularly, breathing deeply, and then fill the hot water bottle and place it on a convenient portion of the anatomy and let the mind become blank.

Trust to Sleep Inducers. But if some intractable, melancholy guest calls the clerk at midnight and tells him that he has failed to go to sleep, even after following these suggestions, the clerk may turn to another remedy. When the lettuce is consumed, he must take a hot sponge bath, rubbing down vigorously with bath salts. After a few muscular exercises, and the preparation of cold cloths for his head, the guest is to be left alone. If he still fails to sleep there is nothing left for the clerk but to be a diplomat.

When the lettuce arrives the guest is to eat it slowly, with thoughts far from the subject of sleep. The lettuce is consumed, he must take a hot sponge bath, rubbing down vigorously with bath salts. After a few muscular exercises, and the preparation of cold cloths for his head, the guest is to be left alone. If he still fails to sleep there is nothing left for the clerk but to be a diplomat.

How Austro-Germans and Bulgarians Are Trapping Servians

The black line indicates approximately the front of the invading armies today, and the shaded portion behind it the section of Serbia they hold. The Germans are moving down from the north, the Austro-Germans from the northwest through Montenegro and the Bulgarians from the east and south-east. The position of the allied troops is not definitely known, but they are supposed to be somewhere in the vicinity of Strumitza. They are in constant contact with the southern Bulgarian forces.

British Take 280 Yards of Trenches at Dardanelles

In the meantime the enemy delivered an attack. The left wing of one of our center regiments was pushed some distance. When the enemy attempted to attack the front of another regiment he reached its advance trenches, but by cross fire and counter attack, was repulsed from these trenches to his former positions, suffering heavy losses.

The British official statement on the recent operations follows: "In the Dardanelles the 15th second Division carried out a very successful attack in Turkish trenches on Nov. 15, for which careful preparation had been in progress for a considerable time.

"Three mines were exploded successfully under the enemy's trenches in the neighborhood of the Krithia Nullah at 3 p. m. and the infantry, pushing forward immediately afterward, captured about 160 yards of trenches on the east of the Nullah and 120 yards on its west. The captured trenches were at once consolidated and bombing parties pushed on up through the communication trenches and erected barricades.

Monitors Aid in Work. "Simultaneously with the assault, our artillery opened on the enemy's reserve support trenches, two 14-inch monitors and H. M. S. Edgar (cruiser) co-operating. The idea was to have made a position was reported consolidated at about 6 p. m.

"The enemy's batteries replied heavily but erratically and did little damage. The Turks in the neighboring trenches, who fired heavily, were caught by machine gun and rifle fire and bombs and suffered considerably, their fire becoming very wild.

"No attempt at a counter attack was made until the night of Nov. 16, when it was easily repulsed. Our casualties were under 30 killed and wounded. Over 70 dead were seen in the captured position and a wounded prisoner reports that over 90 were buried by the explosion of one mine.

"The units employed were portions of the Fourth and Seventh Royal Scots, the Seventh and Eighth Scottish Rifles and the Ayrshire Yeomanry.

Indian Troops Said to Have Refused to March Against Bagdad. BEHLEN, Nov. 18.—By wireless to Saltville.—The British advance against Bagdad has been checked south of Kut in Mesopotamia by a mutiny of Indian troops, who refused to march further against Bagdad because of the presence in that city of objects sacred to their religion, according to a Frankfurter Zeitung dispatch from Constantinople. The Overseas News Agency says. Kut is 105 miles southeast of Bagdad.

"The British executed every tenth Indian soldier of several battalions," the quoted dispatch says, "but the Indians openly refused to march against Salamiyah and Bagdad, where several holy images are buried.

WOMAN NOVELIST SWALLOWS POISON IN LONDON COURT

Miss Annesley Kenealy Had Just Lost Suit Against Book Publishing Firm.

LONDON, Nov. 18.—"My Lord, I told you you were trying a woman for her life; I have taken enough poison to kill five persons!" was the dramatic exclamation of Miss Annesley Kenealy, well-known novelist, as she threw upon the floor a bottle whose contents she had just swallowed, on hearing the court pronounce judgment against her.

Miss Kenealy collapsed and was carried unconscious to the emergency ward of the courthouse and later taken to a hospital. She recovered consciousness this afternoon and doctors said she was out of danger.

Miss Kenealy had been in court several days at the trial of a damage suit which she brought against a wholesale book distributor from whom she alleged members of the firm had made false and malicious statements defamatory of a book she had written. The defendants refused to circulate the book, declaring that it contained a libel on a fashionable West End dressmaker, whose premises were described as a gambling den. Miss Kenealy averred that the action of the defendants deprived her of a livelihood, as other publishers now refuse to accept the book.

Miss Kenealy and her sister, Arabella, are daughters of the late Edward V. H. Kenealy, who, in 1874, was the leading counsel for the claimant in the notorious Tichborne trial.

Her brother, Alexander Kenealy, who died recently in London, was editor of the Daily Mirror and well known to newspaper men in New York, where he had worked for many years prior to his connection with the London publication. Her sister, Dr. Arabella Kenealy, is extremely prominent throughout England as a woman of affairs.

BRIG-GEN. T. H. BLISS BECOMES A MAJOR-GENERAL

Number of Army Changes Follow the Retirement of Major-General William H. Carter.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18.—Brigadier-General Tasker H. Bliss, assistant chief of staff, became a Major-General today, upon the retirement of Major-General William H. Carter. Col. John F. Morrison of the Fifteenth Infantry, now at Tientsin, China, will be promoted to be a Brigadier-General, taking the place of Gen. Bliss in the line.

Gen. Bliss will continue as assistant chief of staff, with the probability of succeeding Major-General Scott as chief of staff, upon the latter's retirement in 1917. Gen. Carter will be succeeded in command of the Hawaiian Department by Brigadier-General John P. Warner, now in command of the First Hawaiian Brigade, who will be relieved by Brigadier-General Frederick S. Strong, now commanding the South Atlantic Coast Artillery district at Charleston, S. C.

Gen. Carter, a medal of honor man, won the decoration for gallant conduct in saving the lives of several wounded men during an Indian campaign. His military career began as a private in the Union army in the Civil War, and later he entered West Point.

British Recruiting Scheme Extended to Dec. 11. LONDON, Nov. 18.—The Earl of Derby has announced that his recruiting scheme will be extended to Dec. 11, and in speeches at Glasgow and Edinburgh has repeated his statement that if unmarried men do not respond for enlistment in sufficient numbers the question of resorting to compulsory enlistment will be brought before Parliament.

WHAT CAUSES COLDS? A cold is really a fever, not always caused by the weather but often due to disordered blood or lack of important food-elements. In changing seasons fat-foods are essential because they distribute heat by enriching the blood and so render the system better able to withstand the varying elements. This is the important reason why Scott's Emulsion should always be taken for colds, and it does more—builds strength to prevent sickness.

Scott's Emulsion contains Nature's rare strength-building fats, so skillfully blended that the blood profits from every drop. It is free from harmful drugs and alcohol—always gets the genuine.

PROPOSED WATER RATE CUT DEBATED AT PUBLIC HEARING

Civic League Opposes Concession to Manufacturers, Business Men's League Favors It.

Committees of the Civic League and the Business Men's League appeared before the Public Utilities Committee of the Board of Aldermen in the city hall yesterday afternoon, the former opposing and the latter advocating the passage of the new water rates bill as amended, which would give reductions in rates to manufacturers and large users of water.

Water Commissioner Wall was present. He told the Aldermen that the waterworks was self-sustaining; that it had a pumping capacity of 105,000,000 gallons daily and that 100,000,000 gallons daily was sufficient for the city's needs. He said the St. Louis water rate for all purposes was lower now than in 300 principal cities of the United States, excepting only lake towns.

William F. Woerner, formerly a member of the State Public Utilities Committee, filed a protest from the Civic League and opposed the proposed amendments to the water rates bill. He presented figures obtained by the Civic League from the Water Department, and said it cost the city 84 cents a thousand gallons to furnish water. He said the present flat rate, the one given householders and small users, was 10 cents a thousand gallons or 7 1/2 cents the 100 cubic feet. Manufacturers and large users, he said, now pay but 5 cents a thousand gallons, a loss to the city of 2-10ths of a cent on each 1000 gallons.

Woerner said it was the contention of the Civic League that water should be sold to all users as cheaply as possible, but in no case should the city—let alone a favored class of users.

Commissioner Wall said that big users of water were always given better rates than smaller users. He said the question was one of policy for the city administration to decide.

A. F. Versen, industrial commissioner of the Business Men's League told of several large industries that wished to come to St. Louis because of its central location, but were waiting encouragement in the way of cheaper water rates.

GERMANY REPORTED TO HAVE COTTON ENOUGH FOR YEARS

News Agency Says There Is Enough of Staple for Military Purpose in Addition to Turkish Supply.

BERLIN, by wireless to Sayville, Nov. 18.—Germany not only has all the cotton she needs for military purposes for several years, but new fields of supply are now open to her, says the Overseas News Agency.

"Competent German authorities state that the German army is sufficiently provided with cotton for several years," the news agency says. "In addition, huge quantities can be obtained from Turkey by way of the Danube, and even if all shipments were stopped Germany is provided with the material for an indefinite time."

Chick has turned over to the school collateral having a face value of $180,000. Chick was not present at the meeting.

The discovery of the status of the school's financial affairs was made by C. W. Scarritt in going over some notes Chick admitted. It was stated, that he had been using the school's collateral to get loans at banks.

"RIO" SHOWN AS MODEL CITY

E. M. Newman opened his 1915 season of travel talks at the Odeon last night, with "Rio de Janeiro, the Beautiful." He pointed to "Rio" in its parkways and other matters of city building as a striking example for St. Louis. The pictures showed not only the beauties and curiosities of the Brazilian metropolis, but its great industries. The speaker took occasion to impress on business men the importance of a mastery of the language of South America and the need of sending its people the articles which they desired, rather than only those which makers wished to sell.

Next Thursday night's travel talk will be on "Buenos Aires."

YOUNG men realize that this fast growing store keeps up with their wants and needs; our Hart Schaffner & Marx young men's Suits and Overcoats are conceded to lead and hold the styles. Look at the things that count, especially in this season's styles—the new narrow collars, slender lapels, narrow shoulders—the new drape and new skirt flare in Overcoats—novelties in sleeve treatment, new features. See the Varsity Six Hundred Overcoat and the Varsity Fifty-Five Suits, the things for the young fellows—they're all here. Special values at $20 and $25.

Girl in Motor Car and Young Woman Pedestrian Injured; a Wagon Is Overtaken.

Two men were killed and four persons were injured in automobile accidents in St. Louis yesterday. The total of deaths caused by motor vehicles here since Jan. 1 is now 56.

Charles A. E. 50 years old, of 5023 Shaw avenue, was knocked down and fatally injured at Shaw avenue and King's highway, at 6 p. m., by an automobile driven by Oscar A. Miller, a carpenter, of 3534A South Spring avenue.

Albe was crossing from the east to the west side of King's highway. The automobile was going south. In the machine with Miller were three other carpenters: John Brown, 825 Weber road; August Kump, 5 North Second street; and Alfred Plisinger, 522 West Hurck street.

Albe was placed in the automobile and taken to Barnes Hospital. He died on the way. Miller told police men the machine was going about eight or nine miles an hour. He was held at Mounted District Station as an inquest witness.

Hit by Mail Truck.

A man believed to be Frank Richardson of Ferguson, Mo., employed in a factory at Prospect Hill, was knocked down and fatally injured, at Broadway and Thatcher avenue, at 9:30 p. m., by a United States mail truck driven by Charles Riddle, of 2615 Finney avenue. The truck was going south on Broadway and Richardson was walking in the street.

The injured man was placed on a stretcher and taken to the Baden hospital, where he died at 12:30 a. m. His skull was fractured.

Riddle was arrested. He told the police he turned out to avoid hitting Richardson, but Richardson became excited and stepped in front of the machine.

Frederick Johann, 70 years old, 1945 South Compton avenue, a railway supply dealer, was knocked down and injured by an automobile as he was about to board a street car, at Grand avenue and Junata street, at 6 p. m. His scalp was cut and his body bruised.

Girl's Ankle Is Sprained.

Mrs. Eugene Funsten, 6338 Cabanne avenue, on turning a corner in her automobile, at Grand avenue and Morgan street, at 4 p. m., ran down Mary Devaney, 17 years old, of Normandy, St. Louis County. The girl's ankle was sprained and her right elbow bruised. After taking Mrs. Devaney to her home in the machine, Mrs. Funsten went to the Dayton Street Police Station and surrendered. A charge of careless driving was placed against her and she was released on bond.

An automobile owned by George B. Webster, of 363 Cabanne avenue and driven by his negro chauffeur, John Griffin, overturned a laundry wagon at Washington and Euclid avenues, at 8:30 p. m., seriously injuring Clifford Napier, of 124 South Cardinal avenue, the driver. Napier's back was wrenched and he was cut and bruised. He was taken to the Missouri Baptist Sanitarium. Napier's father, Charles Napier, who also was in the wagon, was cut and bruised, but not seriously. Griffin was arrested. Reuben M. Lampton, 99 years old, of 2416 Washington avenue, was knocked down at 5 p. m., at Grand avenue and Olive street, by an automobile driven by William M. Black of Webster Groves. Black, who was driving to his office, where it was found he apparently was only slightly bruised. On Lampton's statement that he stepped in front of the machine and the accident was unavoidable, Black was permitted by the police to go free.

1,000,000 ENGLISH OLD MAIDS CAUSED BY WAR, PASTOR SAYS

It is also shown that bigamy has increased since conflict began.

LONDON, Nov. 19.—Social and criminal problems are becoming intertwined in England, if not in other countries at war, certainly due in part to the conflict. These are the decreed spinsterhood for millions of girls and young women of the present day and the striking increase in bigamy.

Addressing an audience in St. Luke's Church, Bermondsey, the Rev. J. C. V. Durrell stated that there are upward of 1,000,000 girls now between 16 and 20 years old who will never be married. Almost simultaneously Justice Ridley of the Assizes Court at Liverpool, announced that there were seven bigamy cases in a total calendar containing 36 names, indicating that bigamy is on the increase throughout the country.

Mayor Addresses Young Men.
Mayor of addressed 50 members of the Young Men's Progressive Civic Association at Mission Inn, Grand and Magnolia avenues, last evening. The organization is but two months old and was formed for the study of civic problems. Henry Gieseler is president.

Bomb Drops Near Pope's Nephew.
ROME, Nov. 19.—Count Persico, a nephew of Pope Benedict, had a narrow escape during the recent raid by Austrian aeroplanes on Brescia. One of the missiles dropped by the aviators fell within a few yards of where the Count was standing.

FIFTY CHINESE BABIES IN CONTEST AT PORTLAND, ORE.

Almost as Many Americans as There Were Orientals in Attendance at Exhibition.

PORTLAND, Ore., Nov. 19.—Fifty round-faced Chinese babies were entered in the Chinese baby contest which closed here with an exhibition which was attended by almost as many Americans as Chinese. The success of the show was due to the work of Lee Hong, president of the Chinese Chamber of Commerce, assisted by Seid Tain, Mrs. Herman Low and Miss Daisy Luck.

Awards were made as follows: Infants, girls—Mildred Chin, first; Margaret Lee, second. Boys, Raymond Sue, first; Victor Lee, second.

One to two years, girls—Hazel Link, first; Gertrude Johnson, second. Boys, Edwin Lee, first; Chester Lee, second.

Two to five years, girls—Anna Wong, first; Clara Low, second. Boys, Francis Leo, first; Benjamin Lee, second.

Dies After Getting War Order.
HARRISBURG, Pa., Nov. 19.—Jeremiah S. Shanahan, 60 years old, died yesterday after receiving an order for $100,000 worth of artificial limbs from the French Government.

SUDAN GRASS SEED PROFITS

ROBINSON, Kan., Nov. 20.—Albert Peterson threshed 2500 pounds of seed from five acres of Sudan grass, their value being $1300, according to last year's prices.

The crop was produced from an original importation of seed from Sudan, Africa, at an expense of $3 a bushel.

Chief Ogallala Fire Near Death.

CHICAGO, Nov. 19.—Ogallala Fire, a noted Indian chief and a survivor of Custer's last fight, is reported to be dying here at the home of his friend, Chief Little Bear. Chief Ogallala Fire is 87 years old.

INJURED WATCHMAN DIES

Man, 71, Found Unconscious on Railroad Tracks.

Bernhardt Mackfessel, 71 years old, of 903 Builwer avenue, night watchman of the Valley Milling Co., who was found unconscious yesterday morning in the mill company's yard at 402 De Soto avenue, with a fractured skull, died at 3 o'clock this morning at the city hospital.

Mackfessel was found lying face down between the railroad tracks in the yard. He was only partly clad. The police think he became sick in the night and on going out for fresh air fell and struck his head on the railroad track.

B. M. L. TO INQUIRE INTO COST OF OLD TRAILS ROAD WORK

Steps Taken Toward Employment of Agent to Represent It in Matter.

Interest in good roads inspired by the good roads meeting held at the City Club yesterday led the Good Roads Committee of the Business Men's League to take the first step today toward ascertaining what financial investment would be required for the preliminary work of improving the eastern end of the old trail.

Application was made to Judge J. M. Lowe of Kansas City, president of the National Old Trails Road Association, for a man to act as the league's agent in the matter.

The question of employing a business agent for the road work will be submitted to the Executive Committee of the league at its next meeting, and it is believed the arrangement will be authorized.

A Good Roads day in the interest of the roads and bridges propaganda in St. Louis County is to be arranged for at one of the Wednesday membership conferences and luncheons of the league.

John T. Woodruff of Springfield, Mo., chairman of the Greater Springfield Committee, and who is promoting road improvement throughout the State, especially those roads radiating from Springfield, was the principal speaker at the City Club gathering. Attending the meeting were 45 delegates from the agricultural advisers' convention. Woodruff pointed out that all states where roads are not improved are given over to tenant farmers who have little interest in the country in which they live.

He said the lack of good roads drove the more thrifty farmers to the big cities, because of the lack of proper transportation facilities. He also told of the increased wealth in products that would accrue as a result of better roads.

POLICEMEN ADMIT DRINKING BEER IN A BUTCHER SHOP

Assistant Circuit Attorney Severely Criticizes Men for Testifying Against Girl.

The testimony given by two policemen at a trial in Judge Fisher's court yesterday in which they admitted drinking beer in a butcher shop on Sunday, was written today by Assistant Circuit Attorney McDaniel and forwarded to the Police Board.

The trial was one at which Arthur Volz of 828 East Prairie avenue was found guilty of contributing to the delinquency of Lena Hilkie, 16 years old, of 827 East Prairie avenue. He was sentenced to six months in the workhouse and to pay a fine of $500.

Volz in his defense called Patrolmen Edward Wood and Charles Foster as witnesses. They testified to seeing the girl talking with a man in front of her home about 1 a. m. on July 6, 1914. Wood was asked by the Assistant Circuit Attorney if he was not in the habit of drinking beer in a butcher shop conducted by the father of the Hilkie girl. The policeman said that he had drunk beer in the shop Sunday.

Foster also admitted that he occasionally drank beer in the shop. In addressing the jury the Assistant Circuit Attorney said that the policemen should be stripped of their buttons and placed in the stocks for trying to injure a girl's reputation when they had no better evidence to give.

AMERICANS IN BERLIN GET SMALL SUPPLIES BY POST

Suspension of Parcel Service Will Affect Them Severely, but Not the General Situation.

BERLIN, via London, Nov. 19.—The suspension of the parcel post from the United States to Germany will involve considerable hardship to the members of the American Colony, many of whom have been getting small supplies of flour, rice, cereals, coffee, overcoats and other sundries from the United States, though at considerable expense. A suspension of the post will have no effect on the general situation, however, since the amount of goods thus imported is relatively small and the contents of the parcels were used only by those having relatives or connections in the United States.

Gurney Says "Newspapers Are Bankers' Best Advertising Medium."

In an address made before 150 members of the Inspirational Club of the Railroad Y. M. C. A., at a luncheon yesterday, R. L. Gurney of the American Trust Co., said:

"The modern newspaper with its daily review of world history, scientific achievements, movements of Governments, adventure, sport, commerce and local affairs, has come to be looked upon by men and women as being as essential as their daily bread. The modern daily newspaper does their thinking, and directs their buying, for the advertising pages are read with as much care as any of the other pages. Hence to carry this educational propaganda most effectively, the American Bankers' Association will make large use of newspaper space. For the bankers have learned by the results obtained from their newspaper advertising that whether they have a service to sell, or a message to tell, that the daily newspaper is the best medium not only for reaching some of the people some of the time, but all of the people all of the time."

WOULD BAR HUNTING IN FRANCE

PARIS, Nov. 19.—Emile Constant expressed regret in the Chamber of Deputies yesterday that there were men in France who preferred hunting with a gun than going to the front with it. He interrogated the Minister of Agriculture, Jules Melne, concerning the reasons for the Government permitting hunting with firearms.

Melne replied that trapping had failed to keep down the game which was damaging crops.

JAPANESE WOMAN TO SHARE EMPLOYER'S $150,000 ESTATE

For Fourteen Years She Managed Seattle Hotel in Which Testator Was Half Owner.

SEATTLE, Wash., Nov. 19.—Miss Joe Suzuki, a Japanese woman, for 14 years manager of the Grand Central Hotel, 24 First avenue South, is to receive a large share of the $150,000 estate left by William Holt, Seattle realty dealer, hotel man and fruit grower, who died Wednesday night. Holt, who was half owner of the Grand Central Hotel, makes the bequest to Miss Suzuki because she looked after his interests and cared for him during his last illness. The will also makes a bequest of $50,000 to the Children's Orthopedic Hospital for the maintenance of a bed to be known as "the William Holt bed."

The will directs that Seattle property given to Miss Suzuki and Willis B. Herr shall be sold and after other bequests of the will are made the residue is to be divided equally between Miss Suzuki and Herr.

Holt came here from Denver 16 years ago. He was 53 years old and unmarried.

TWO MEN BADLY BURNED DRIVE TO DISPENSARY IN AN AUTO

Go Six Blocks to Get Treatment and Both Are Then Sent to the City Hospital.

When Arthur McFarland, 41 years old, of 1002 Blenden place and Charles Mason, 31 years old, of 413 Nebraska avenue received serious burns in a gasoline tank explosion yesterday afternoon at the yards of the Boeckeler Lumber Co., Hall avenue and Mallinckrodt street, they jumped into a runabout and, with Mason driving, dashed through the streets to the North End Dispensary, six blocks away, to get treatment. From there they were sent to the city hospital.

The men were repairing the 3-gallon tank of a delivery truck. It had been emptied and air had been pumped into it, but the gasoline vapor that remained was ignited by a spark from a hammer stroke and the explosion shattered the tank.

TWO DALLAS DETECTIVES SHOT

Robber Suspects Arrested After Fight in Rooming House.

DALLAS, Tex., Nov. 19.—Frank Smith and George Elmick, city detectives, are wounded and two robber suspects in jail, following a pistol fight early today between police and one of the robbers in a downtown rooming house.

The fight took place after a man who gave the name of Widener had been arrested and had directed the police to the hiding place of "Red" Kelly. Widener, according to the police, confessed to two holdups last night.

ALL SIDES WIN IN ART HILL CAR LINE COMMITTEE ROW

Wrangle Over Membership Finally Composed and Still Another Committee Is Named.

Open warfare among members of the committee of 25 citizens appointed by Mayor Kiel to assist and organize a committee to solve the problem of transportation to the Art Museum was narrowly averted yesterday afternoon at the committee's meeting in the Mayor's office.

Wrangling began when George Blackman of the St. Louis Art League, stated that Alderman Koenig, committee chairman, had stricken seven names from the tentative roster of the citizens' committee, after having agreed upon them, and substituted others who were unfavorable to the proposed street car extension to the museum.

"You have removed the name of Ben Blewett, representing 50,000 children, to add the names of representatives of the monkeys in the park," Blackman told Koenig. George E. Dieckman and Robert H. Kelsier, representing the Zoological Board and the Zoological Society, respectively, were the men to whom Blackman alluded.

Dieckman jumped up and shouted that he and Kelsier had as much right on the committee as "Blackman and his art leaguers."

Denial Made by Koenig. Koenig denied that he had knowingly stricken off the names of any persons he had promised Blackman and members of the Art League would be placed on the citizens' committee. Blackman replied: "All men are liars, more or less."

Koenig demanded that Blackman sit down, but he would not. He asked that the names of Ben Blewett, F. W. Lehmann, George P. Greeley, W. M. Chauvenet, Arthur Stoehr, George J. Tansy and John H. Gundlach be added to the committee, and carried his point.

Dieckman, who had assumed leadership of the opposing faction, immediately asked the names of A. A. Kocian, Cortlandt Harris, W. H. Roelinger, Charles H. Flach and Frank A. Schwarz be added. This was done.

Causes Second Outburst. A second outburst was caused when Blackman introduced a resolution, requesting the Board of Public Service to make surveys and submit a plan for a car line to pass "at a suitable distance from the lakes in the zoological reservation."

Dieckman challenged this as an attempt to tie the hands of the board so that it could consider only one route, and the resolution, after several minutes of wrangling, was amended to give the board the power to consider any and all routes.

A committee of six was then appointed to consider the methods of transportation. They are Rodoway Abeken, chairman; Park Commissioner Cunliff, Robert H. Kelsier, George Blackman, Ben Blewett and W. M. Chauvenet.

MAIL WAGON DRIVER BEHIND TIME, HORSE GOES ALONE
Jim, the Faithful, After 10 Years, Retired on Pension of Ease by Union Pacific.

OMAHA, Neb., Nov. 19.—Jim, a faithful servant of the Union Pacific Railway Co., for the past 10 years, has been retired on a pension of ease. Jim is a horse. He is 21 years old.

Jim pulled the mail wagon between headquarters and Union Station. On the day before his retirement, he manifested his knowledge and faithfulness in a manner convincing to the railway authorities.

The final trip each day was from the company's office, starting at 5:45 o'clock in the afternoon, to get the mail to the station for a 6:10 train. Jim was at his post on schedule, but the driver, Ed Howk, lingered in the building. Jim waited until 10 minutes after the starting time, then he gave the leather strap attached to a hitching weight in his mouth and trotted slowly to the station. There he waited a sufficient time for the mail to be unloaded, picked up the weight as before and proceeded to the stable. There he was unhitched as usual and led to his stall, where Howk found him after having carried the mail to the depot in a street car.

TELEPHONE RUNG IN COURT BY CURRENT PASSING THROUGH MAN
Demonstration Used in Attempt to Show Woman Could Not Have Been Injured as Alleged.

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., Nov. 19.—A telephone was rung by current passing through a man's body in the Circuit Court here as evidence in a damage suit. The case was that of Mrs. M. T. Warren, who sued the Missouri and Kansas Telephone Co. for $500 for an alleged injury from electric shock while using a telephone.

The defendants contended the current of 75 to 100 volts used in ringing telephones is not enough to cause injury to a human being and provided the novel demonstration in support of their claim.

A telephone was placed on the court stenographer's desk and one of the wires forming the circuit was cut. Louis Hoffman grasped the two ends of the wire, one end in each hand, and over another telephone the operator was told to ring the improvised phone. The telephone rang, the current passing through Hoffman's body. Apparently he was uninjured. The jury could not agree and was discharged.

Mix a Little Kellogg's Bran With Your Breakfast Cereal

Read this letter. It will give you an idea. It refers to the New York Globe and Alfred McCann, the Pure Food authority.

See what this housewife and this New York grocer think of Kellogg's Cooked Bran, Nature's food laxative.

Dear Mr. Editor: New York
Having read Mr. McCann's articles on the injurious effects of white flour, I searched the Globe for suggestions. I was attracted to "Kellogg's Bran".
Assuring myself that my grocer, Henry Kulze, 3522 Broadway, was on the Globe list of Pure Food Dealers, I inquired about the Bran. "My best answer is my baby," said he. "The little fellow was not well and we determined to try Kellogg's Bran for him; we have given it to him; in cereal every morning and you may judge the result for yourself." Such a healthy, happy, robust boy! Such a clear complexion! Such bright eyes! He did indeed speak well for the Bran. I immediately purchased a package for 25c, and am giving my family the benefit.

Very truly yours,
Mrs. G. A. H., W. 148 St., New York.

Kellogg's Bran (COOKED)

Raw bran is not tempting to the taste. It is necessary to prepare it in the form of bran bread, bran muffins, etc.

Kellogg's Cooked Bran requires no preparation. It is delightful, served from the package with cream and sugar or mixed with any breakfast cereal.

Keep well for about a half cent a day with Kellogg's Cooked Bran.

PREDICTS FUTURE OF PEACE BETWEEN U. S. AND JAPAN

Baron Shibusawa at Seattle Says
It Is Duty to Harmonize Two Types of Civilization.

By Associated Press.
SEATTLE, Wash., Nov. 19.—Fifty years of close contact with Japanese politics and finance have led Baron Yel-fichi Shibusawa to the belief that the policies of the United States and of Japan eventually will be brought into perfect harmony without recourse to the force of arms.

This expression was made by Baron Shibusawa, one of Japan's foremost financiers, at a luncheon given in his honor yesterday at the Seattle Chamber of Commerce. He said:

"Two types of civilization, each with distinctive traits and ideals, separated from each other for centuries, now face each other across the Pacific. The problem now is whether they can come to know and appreciate each other and be brought into perfect harmony or whether increased contact between the two will mean a clash and war."

"Our own experience of 50 years convinces us of the possibility of peaceful harmonizing, and the duty of carrying out this noble task falls upon the United States and Japan, who face each other as the representatives of the two types of civilization. I am convinced that this is fully appreciated by all intelligent persons on this side of the water."

"Our trade relations are growing by leaps and bounds, and we recognize that our prosperity and material well-being largely depend upon amicable relations with you."

Baron Shibusawa, who is making a tour of the United States to renew acquaintances made six years ago, when he was at the head of a Japanese commission which visited all the larger
American cities, departed for Chicago.
He will visit Pittsburgh, Philadelphia,
New York, Boston and Washington.

PATHS ARE FEW IN WILDERNESS OF U. S. GOVERNMENT, SAYS TAFT

"My Economy Commission Made the
Only Map of Them and It Is Now
Deep Under Dust."

NEW YORK, Nov. 19.—"The great danger I see ahead of popular Government is bankruptcy, due to the lack of popular knowledge of the income and the outgo," said former President Taft in an address at a dinner given by the Bureau of Municipal Research last night.

"I know the Government of the United States to be a wilderness with very few paths," said Mr. Taft. "The only ones who made paths through it were the members of the efficiency and economy commission of my administration and its map is now lying under three inches of dust."

"They had first to find out what kind of a Government we have. We need experts to do that, and we still need experts. We're going now into a policy of preparedness, and it is going to take a good deal of money and economies will have to be effected to provide the money."

INQUIRY INTO DOG SPECTACLES

Complaint Against Eastern Firm
Selling Them Made in Chicago.

CHICAGO, Nov. 19.—Spectacles for dogs is the subject of an investigation by the Postoffice Department. District Attorney Charles F. Cline said complaint had been made by a woman that a company at Elmira, N. Y., advertised such spectacles, and that a pair purchased by her had proved to be worthless.

"Glasses for dogs, outside of comic pictures or children's picture books, were new to me," said Cline. "The other day I went to the office of an oculist with a friend. To our amazement a bull terrier was being fitted with a pair of the glasses, which were strapped to a shoulder harness."

TAKING COPPER FROM CHURCHES

Germans Reported to Be Dismantling Cathedral Roofs for Metal.

LONDON, Nov. 19.—A Copenhagen dispatch to Reuter's Telegram Co. says that the copper famine in Germany is so acute that requests equivalent to demands are now reaching the authorities of the churches to hand over all the copper in their possession as a good ex-

FOURTH DEATH FROM ANTHRAX

New York Girl Believed to Have Contracted Disease From Fur.

NEW YORK, Nov. 19.—Sophie Rosen, 17 years old, candy packer, who died yesterday of anthrax, was the fourth person to succumb to the disease in New York within ten weeks. Death came in less than a week of infection.
Serum recently tried in a similar case was not used.

The infection came to the girl, physicians believe, from a collar of impenetrable fur which adorned a new black velvet suit bought a week ago by her father.

GRAND JURY FINDS NO INDICTMENT IN THE BURTON CASE

Circuit Attorney Harvey Declines to Say Whether He Will Take Further Steps.

After considering, for nearly a month, testimony concerning a $250 loan made March 20, 1914, by Claude B. Burton, then Assessor and Collector of Water Rates, to John B. Owen, then a deputy in his office, the grand jury voted yesterday afternoon not to indict Burton. The statute which they considered in connection with the testimony was section 4557 of the State code. It states that any custodian of public funds, who lends them with or without interest, shall be guilty of a felony, punishable by not less than two years imprisonment, or by a fine not less than $500.

Owen was indicted two weeks ago for embezzlement, under section 4554, which forbids the conversion of public funds to private use. He is charged with having taken money from the collection division of the office, after he became its head under the new charter, and leaving personal checks in place of the cash.

City Lost in Neither Case.
The Owen indictment was returned when the matter had been considered by the grand jury for not more than half the length of time which has been given to the Burton case. Both Owen and Burton have been discharged from the city's employ. The Owen checks have been paid and taken up by Owen's son, Harvey Owen. The city lost no money by Burton's dealings.

Circuit Attorney Harvey declined this morning to say whether he would present the Burton case to another grand jury or issue an information against Burton, as the law gives him power to do.

On March 30, 1914, Burton gave Owen a check for $250, drawn against Burton's account in the Mechanics-American National Bank, and Owen cashed the check at the Merchants Trust Co. This check, now in the Circuit Attorney's hands, establishes the fact of the loan made by Burton to Owen.

Rest of the case depends on the testimony of C. J. Sattell, cashier of the water rates office, and on the records of the Mechanics-American Bank. From these two sources of evidence the Circuit Attorney tried to establish that Burton got $250 from the office funds, giving Sattell his check for it, directed Sattell to hold the check, and paid off the check in installments of $25 a month, as Owen repaid Burton. The Circuit Attorney has two of Owen's checks for $25 and a small excess, supposed to represent interest, which were turned in by Burton as installments in paying off Burton's check.

The fact that the original check given by Burton to Sattell was not available, and that the date when it was given was not clear within several weeks in Sattell's recollection, was considered the weak point in the testimony.

Matters Still Under Consideration.
The grand jury still has to consider the matter of the $225 found in the water rates office treasury, which is believed to represent a partial payment made to the city in January, 1914, by the Spotless Laundry Co., now defunct. Max Orthwein, who was president of the laundry firm, has shown his canceled check for the payment, but the loss of some of the water office records has prevented the checking up of the matter. A $100 payment by the Bethesda Home, of which no record has been found in the office, is another matter for the grand jury.

The members of the grand jury are Henry Niedringhaus Jr., 5651 Bartmet avenue; F. N. Horn, 6127 Kingsbury boulevard; F. J. Karleskind, 2322 Accomac street; B. S. Pearson, Buckingham Annex; A. C. Thibodeau, 342 Longfellow boulevard; Harry J. Scullin, 1231 Hamilton avenue; John P. Boyce, 4335 Forest Park boulevard; W. H. Niederluecke, 2933 Dodder street; Abraham Friedman, 4442 Lindell boulevard; George T. Matthews, 824 Kansas avenue; E. W. Weir, 1313 Blackstone avenue; and W. J. O'Conch, Boatmen's Bank Building.

TEXAS FARMERS REAPING BIG HARVEST FROM TURKEY SALES

Heavy Shipments East for Thanksgiving and Christmas at 12 to 13 Cents Per Pound.

WAXAHACHIE, Tex., Nov. 19.—The shipments of turkeys from Texas are under way in volume, and farmers are reaping profits to add to bank accounts started with the proceeds from agricultural products and food animals. More than 2000 of the Thanksgiving and Christmas birds have gone from this center to Eastern and Northern cities, the growers receiving from 12 to 13 cents per pound. Reports from other centers of the turkey-growing industry show returns as low as 11 cents per pound.

After supplying in large part the Thanksgiving market, a large supply of the birds will remain to take care of the Christmas demand. Texas is peculiarly fortunate this year, having a larger run of turkeys than for any previous year.

MISSOURI NEEDS SMALL CHANGE

Southwestern Territory Wants $1 Bills and Silver.

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., Nov. 19.—The southwestern territory, including about half of Missouri, parts of Kansas, Oklahoma and Arkansas, is suffering from a dollar bill and small change famine, according to local bankers.

The cause is assigned to the fact that extensive purchases in grain and hogs are being made by the farmers, and this activity calls for a large amount of old change. All the banks of the city are being pressed for large supplies of small money.

COURT GIVES DIRECTIONS TO FARMERS AS TO PLOWING

Residents of Bilby-Wideck Neighborhood, Near Medford, Ok., Must Follow East and West and Not Dig Ditches.

MEDFORD, Ok., Nov. 19.—A blanket court order directing all the farmers in the Bilby-Wideck neighborhood to plow east and west, and not dig any more ditches has been made. Building ditches resulted in almost a feud and ended in a lawsuit. The court action was brought by S. A. Bilby against Elmer Wideck to prevent him from digging any more ditches or building dams on his land near Hawley.

Other farmers in the neighborhood were interested in the case, although they were not parties to the suit. Judge Bowles had a blueprint map made of the land that is drained by the creeks in that area to plow east and west, which will prevent the erosion of their land, and they are all restrained by the court order from building any more dams.

Two Men Killed by Train.
LOUISIANA, Mo., Nov. 19.—John Dillender and Zach Whaley of this city were killed instantly by a westbound

Chicago & Alton passenger train a short switch east of here, last evening. The distance east of the Quincy Junction met. were riding on a three-wheel car.

ROBERT AULL CRITICALLY ILL

Robert Aull, 6170 Berlin avenue, former president of the old St. Louis Fair Association and Park Commissioner under Mayor Wells, is seriously ill at St. Luke's Hospital and according to a statement made by the attending physician, his death may be momentarily expected. Aull, who is 62 years old, was stricken with paralysis about a year ago. He was for some time in the Jewish Hospital and was later taken to St. Luke's; he was convalescing when he suffered a second attack Saturday.

68 LOVE LETTERS BY A. S. ERNEST TO GIRL FIGURE IN SUIT

Chicago Woman Demands $50,000 of East St. Louis for Breach of Promise.

CHICAGO, Ill., Nov. 18.—Sixty-eight perfervid love letters, each breathing undying affection and the most passionate devotion, will be introduced in evidence in a suit for $50,000 for alleged breach of promise filed in East St. Louis on behalf of a Chicago club and sorority girl against Arnold Stedman Ernest, son of the late Finis P. Ernest, multimillionaire real estate operator of East St. Louis and Denver.

The plaintiff is Miss Ruth Roy Stout, daughter of Mrs. Emma Strobel Stout of Chicago. Miss Stout is now 21 years old, pretty, graceful and accomplished. She is popular in the country set of the Edgewater Woman's Club and other North Side social circles. Only the praepice of the suit has been filed by Miss Stout's attorney.

The wooing of Miss Stout, which is said to have covered 18 months, punctuated at short intervals by the love letters from Ernest, ended abruptly. It is alleged, on Sept. 1, last, one month from the time declared to have been set for the wedding. Young Ernest, who is a member of the East St. Louis Gasoline Co. and wealthy in his own right, warned by the filing of the praepice, is said to have gone to Texas to escape being served with a summons in the suit. He is 27 years old.

Met One Day, Proposed on Next. The wooing by the young capitalist, which found its climax in the announcement of the engagement in Chicago papers on Aug. 24, the setting of Oct. 1 for the wedding day and the purchase by Miss Stout of a $500 trousseau, is said to have begun when the young persons met at a social gathering in Chicago. The very next day, Miss Stout's attorney, she received a letter from Ernest in which he declared he loved her and wanted her to marry him.

On March 31 last he wrote, according to one of the letters exhibited by Miss Stout: "I love my little girl so much and certainly hate to be away from her, as I know you miss me as much as I do you. Dearest, you are all in the world to me. So do be careful, as I sometimes feel frightened about you. Will write again tomorrow, dear heart, and don't think me neglecting you, as I love you so much. Always yours, "ARNOLD."

"You Are More to Me Every Day." Other letters read: "Sweetheart: I love you more and more every day and the time cannot come too quickly for me when I will be able to hold you, sweet, and call you mine. Write to me soon, sweetheart, and tell me all the news. With more love than usual, I am always yours, "ARNOLD."

"Sweetheart—I still love you, sweetheart, but you must understand that you are more to me every day, and if we were married now you would certainly leave me, as I am never home; always on the go. I will write tomorrow and hope you will please answer this letter, as you did not answer my other two letters. Yours always, dearest, "ARNOLD."

The letters ceased Sept. 1, and eight letters written by Miss Stout remained unanswered, she declares, until Sept. 23, when she received a brief letter saying Ernest had been ill and asking that the wedding be deferred for three weeks. Detectives employed by Miss Stout are declared to have found Ernest was in his usual health.

CONGRESS MAY BE ASKED TO PLACE EMBARGO ON STEEL

Temporary Order Deemed Necessary to Get Supply for Building Two Battleships.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18.—Congress may be asked to place a temporary embargo on exports of structural steel to the European belligerent in order to afford a sufficient supply of the metal for use in the construction of two battleships, bids for which were opened at the Navy Department on Wednesday. It has been learned that neither of the new battleships can be laid down before next summer, because the entire output of the American steel plants is said, has been taken by Europe.

HIGH WINDS, RAIN FROM MISSISSIPPI TO THE ATLANTIC

Shipping in New York Tied Up and Damage Done to Vessels in Harbor.

NEW YORK, Nov. 19.—Gales, accompanied by rains, swept over New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania and the New England states today, reaching in some places 60 to 65 miles an hour, and seriously interfering with telegraphic communication in many places and endangering shipping.

These conditions, termed "the most unusual in many years," by the Weather Bureau, were created by a heavy storm moving in a northwesterly direction up the coast and another storm of almost equal intensity moving east and slightly north from the Ohio Valley.

Heavy storm conditions also were reported in Ohio, Indiana and Illinois, and extending into the adjoining states. Rainfall at most points was light, but the velocity of the wind was in all cases high.

CITY LIMITS LIGHT COMPETITION, SAYS LACLEDE OFFICIAL

Gas Company Refused Permits to String Electric Wires, C. L. Holman Declares.

HEARING BY ALDERMEN

Unable to Say Whether Company Could Furnish Service at 5 Cent Maximum Rate.

C. L. Holman, president of the Laclede Gas Light Co., which was sold to a local syndicate in 1909 by the North American Co., testified last night before a special committee of the Board of Aldermen that the refusal of city authorities in the last three years to issue permits to the Laclede company to extend its wires, has made it impossible for the company to materially increase its competition with the Union Electric, which still is owned by the North American Co.

RICH EMPLOYER IS SUED FOR $100,000 BY A SEAMSTRESS

She Says Man in Whose Home She Worked Was to Marry Her in Westminster Abbey.

NEW YORK, Nov. 19.—Whitney Lyons, son of the late founder of a firm making dental articles, has been sued for $100,000 for breach of promise to marry. The plaintiff is Miss Margaret Connell, for 15 years a seamstress in the Lyons home. She says she and Lyons became engaged in April, 1914, and were to be married the following June in Westminster Abbey.

"There isn't a word of truth in her statements," Lyons said today. "Of course she knew I had a daughter at Wellesley and a son at Yale, and that I wouldn't want this sort of thing; but if they've got to come into it they've got to, for I'm going to fight."

"I've got the canceled checks and the stubs for all the money she ever got from me, and it was all for sewing."

BOOTH'S HYOMEI

AN ANTISEPTIC BREATHING TREATMENT

Croup, Bronchitis, Hay Fever etc.

GET RID OF VILE CATARRH

This shows the Hyomei outfit as you get it at drug stores.

Inside of this box is a bottle of Hyomei, a hard rubber pocket inhaler, that will last a lifetime, and simple instructions for ending catarrh.

Into the inhaler you pour a few drops of magical Hyomei (pronounce it high-ome).

This is absorbed by the antiseptic gauze in the inhaler and now you are ready to breathe it in over the germ infested membrane where it will speedily begin its work of killing catarrh germs. Hyomei is made of Australian eucalyptus combined with other antiseptics and is very pleasant to breathe. It is guaranteed to end catarrh, bronchitis, sore throat, croup, coughs and colds, or money back. It cleans out a stuffed up head in a few minutes.

Sold by druggists and by Wolff-Wilson Drug Co. Complete outfit is inexpensive and includes inhaler. And remember that extra bottles, if afterwards needed, cost only a trifling sum. Breathe it, that's all.

To break up cold in head or chest in a few minutes, pour a teaspoonful of Hyomei into a bowl of boiling water, cover head and bowl with towel, and breathe the vapor.—ADV.

MAULL BROS., St. Louis, U. S. A.

Holman said the city has always permitted the Laclede to sell electricity under its State charter to vend gas; any substitute therefor, but at times has declined absolutely to issue permits to string wires, and at other times has issued permits containing a stipulation that its issuance was not an acknowledgment of the Laclede company's right to sell electricity.

The Laclede company once held a contract to light a portion of the city by electricity, and has from time to time been granted conditional permits to string wires. It owns the franchise of the Phoenix Light, Heat and Power Co., which is authorized to conduct an electric business in the underground district east of Twenty-second street, between Spruce and Wash streets.

5 Per Cent to City.

The Laclede pays the city 5 per cent of the gross revenue of the Phoenix company, as required by the ordinance under which the Union Electric operates, Holman said, but does not pay 5 per cent on the electric earnings of the Laclede company on service outside the underground district.

Alderman Schwartz, chairman of the special committee investigating the feasibility of a municipal lighting plant, asked Holman why the Laclede failed to pay the 5 per cent on electric business outside the underground district.

Holman said it was the opinion of the company that it had authority under its State charter to sell electricity, and was therefore not obligated to pay the special tax to the city except in the underground district where it operates through a subsidiary. Holman said the city was more than compensated for any revenue it lost on this score by the relatively high assessment of the Laclede's franchise under a law enacted in 1902. The Laclede franchise was assessed last year at $8,500,000, and the Phoenix Co. at $500,000, he said, while the Union Electric paid taxes on a franchise assessment of only $4,000,000.

Schwartz could not get a statement from Holman as to whether his company could profitably establish a maximum rate of 5 cents per kilowatt hour for residence lighting. Holman said he lacked definite data due to the fact that the electric business has been a minor part of the Laclede's activities. He agreed to supply what data he can at the next committee meeting, Nov. 30.

ENGLISHMAN, MUNICH LECTURER, FORCED INTO GERMAN ARMY

Accepted Complimentary Citizenship With University Pension and Is Now Conscripted.

LONDON, Nov. 19.—The English newspapers are aroused over the case of Dr. W. H. Wells, a former lecturer in the University of Munich, who has been conscripted for service in the German army. Dr. Wells is a graduate of Oxford and an Englishman by birth, but under the German law he accepted "complimentary" German citizenship when he accepted in 1909 a pension from the University of Munich. He is 38 years old.

English friends of Dr. Wells describe him as thoroughly British in sympathies and feeling. It is stated that German consular officials informed him in 1909 that his acceptance of the pension would make no difference to his status as a British citizen. When the war broke out he planned to return to England but was dissuaded by colleagues into remaining at his post.

HARNEY'S CONDITION CRITICAL

Paul E. Harney, 65 years old, a widely known painter who has specialized in pictures of chickens, is suffering from tuberculosis and is in a critical condition at Mount St. Rose hospital, 9101 South Broadway. He has been a patient there for a week, having been removed there from Mullanphy hospital, where it was found necessary to operate on the throat and insert a tube through which he now breathes.

Harney, after his wife's death two years ago, resided at the Jefferson Hotel. Before coming to St. Louis he lived at Alton, where he conducted art classes.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Paying for City Improvements.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

After attending a meeting of the City Plan Commission I am convinced that the people are unanimous in their desire for city improvements. The great stumbling block seems to be the methods of paying for them provided by the present law. The two methods—the "betterment tax" and the "bond issue"—seem to be equally objectionable. In the case of the betterment tax the property owner is naturally fearful that he might not realize the increase in the value of his property equal to the assessment and of course objects to paying for a doubtful benefit. It is this feeling among property owners that defeated the central parkway.

On the other hand, a bond issue is equally unjust, a property owner in one part of town objects to paying for improvements that will enhance the value of property in some other part of town, thinking in all fairness that the owner who gets the benefit should pay for it. I am informed that in the cities in Germany this difficulty is overcome by first issuing bonds guaranteed by the city treasury, but finally paid by a "betterment" tax levied after the betterment has actually shown itself in increased values. This plan, I believe, could only be adopted by an amendment to the city charter, but it is the only way to get any municipal improvements, as the people are firmly set against both the existing plans of financing improvements. The Blair Statue.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

In looking over the beautiful design for an entrance to Forest Park, I see the statue of Gen. Frank Blair is to be eliminated. I hope Mr. Tol-kaz will see it gets another location. A good place would be on the northeast corner of Eighteenth and Market, where I heard Gen. Blair and Dick Barrett held forth in the fall of 1860. In '64 he was in the field when nominated by Seymour for the presidency—an honor St. Louis will never get again until 2028. JOHN MITCHELL.

Advice to Prohibitionists.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

Appropos of your recent, and really excellent, editorial on the subject of prohibition and the several open letters which the same evoked: Because of the funds at the disposal of the so-called Anti-Saloon League (approximately $2,000,000 a year), it seems to me that your prohibitionists should be divided into two distinct classes: Obviously, we have the fellow who is lambasting "the demon, Rum" as a matter of bread and butter—who is "on the payroll"—and the citizen who honestly believes that to prohibit the manufacture and sale of intoxicants, would bring about better conditions of one kind and another; therefore (and again, obviously), the man of the second class is the one whose expressions of opinion are deserving of attention; and to him I should say:

Begin with an open mind; then, proceed to inform yourself—not by cramming from the arguments to which you are predisposed, but by straddling the fence and looking squarely at both sides.

A MISSOURIAN.

Death Sometimes a Blessing.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

Eagerly have I followed the discussion of Dr. Haiselden's act. Women called him "names." Are they right? The mother was accused of an unmotherly act. To my opinion she was a mother in the full sense of this word. She loved her little one too deeply, too motherly, to allow him to suffer all his life long, to envy if he would be mentally developed enough to comprehend that, the others, not to be able to enjoy life, to play with other children, to be a burden to himself and others. O, you can feel for this mother. I am a mother myself. I had a beautiful little girl, she died 5 months old. She was normal, healthy and beautiful. At 1-2 month she began to develop cancer. We did all we could trying to save her dear little life. We failed. She suffered agony four long weeks. How I wished her death. The blessing, death. Would the women accuse me of an unmotherly act?

The women calling the Doctor "names" would not stand to see their pet dog, cat or horse suffer. They would ask the Humane Society to kill their pet. Was not the baby her mother's pet? I admire this mother for her motherly act to prevent her dear pet from suffering. She did what many do or would like to do if not for fear of what will people say.

ONE OF THE MOTHERS WHO IS NOT AFRAID OF THE TRUTH.

A MORAL DEFECTIVE.

Dr. H. J. Haiselden, the Chicago physician, who permitted the Bollinger baby to die with the consent of its parents because it was defective, has missed his calling; he should be on the stage where the nation-wide publicity he has achieved through his public statement that he deliberately intended to let it die to prevent it from becoming a useless and helpless burden, would be profitable.

There is not much significance in the death of this particular defective infant. So many millions of babies die. Dr. Haiselden's assumption that he could have saved its life by an operation is a mere assumption. The probability is that a child as defective physically as this one was said to be would have died without the doctor's consent.

Instead of saving its life he might have assisted it into the grave by his operation. Such things have happened.

The significant thing about the incident is Dr. Haiselden's advocacy of the policy of putting defective infants to death and sterilizing subnormal children. He confesses that he acts in accord with this policy.

If his policy is adopted who is to be the judge of the fitness of children to live and reproduce their kind? Who is to assume and exercise the power of life and death over infants and to render judgment on the fitness of children for manhood and womanhood? Who can do it save the All-Knowing and the All-Powerful—the Supreme Intelligence that governs the universe and is able to confound the learned and mighty and to give strength to the feeble?

How defective must infants be to merit death? What degree of apparent subnormality shall deserve the surgeon's knife?

Out of what we regard as the worst material frequently is wrought the best results. From feeble and defective children sometimes arise men and women of great physical and mental, moral or spiritual force whose potent influence for good and for human progress the world cannot spare. From hopeless parents and vicious environment spring masters of light and leading.

In assuming to exercise and execute judgment on human life and human potencies Dr. Haiselden is a menace to society. No physician can do this; no physician governed by ethical principle will ever do it—will ever do anything that does not contribute to the saving of life.

Dr. Abraham Jacoby aptly put the principle that must guide the wise and conscientious doctor when he said, "The mission of doctors is not to destroy life but to save it." They cannot assume the guise of minister of life and health to serve death and mutilation.

The materialistic view of human life and human potentialities fails at the crucial point. It takes no account of spirit or mind—of that unfathomable power of nature which energizes and heals in the work of which the physician and surgeon are mere assistants. A maxim which the late Dr. Bernays, a great surgeon, constantly impressed upon his pupils was that "nature heals; the surgeon is only nature's aid."

A dangerous phase of the theory of the right of doctors to determine the question of life or death or fitness for human beings is its criminal possibilities.

If medical or other scientists assume the right and power to doom alleged defectives to death or mutilation, what crimes will be committed in the name of science!

Dr. Haiselden is a moral defective.

AN EX-POST-FACTO GOVERNOR.

Gov. Major affirms his lack of sympathy with the railroad rate increase granted by his Public Service Commission. He also affirmed his lack of sympathy with the looting of the school fund for the benefit of the salary and other funds suggested by the Board of Equalization of which he was a member—that is, he affirmed it after the thing had been done.

OUR VALUED TUNNEL.

A traveling man who writes us that he rides through the St. Louis tunnel four to six times a week, says he suffers much from the noxious gases which, "if there really was a St. Louis, or anything, here, in fact, outside of a lot of hungry, hoodling politicians, would have been done away with long, long ago," and so on.

This is too bad! St. Louis is justly proud of that tunnel, every time it comes to notice, which isn't often. When a St. Louisian happens to walk along Washington avenue, between Eads Bridge and Eighth street, he may reflect with satisfaction that the tunnel—the great, famous St. Louis tunnel, with all its smoke and suffocating gases, is beneath his feet, and that he can, if he is sensitive and the street is quiet, even feel it as the trains rumble through. But he doesn't have to breathe its smoke—let the visitor do that!

Why should we do anything to the tunnel? It represents the best St. Louis has, so far, in the subway line. And it is likely to be the best for a long time to come. Don't knock our tunnel!

NOVELIST FOR VICE-PRESIDENT.

Brand Whitlock's nomination for Vice President on the ticket with Mr. Wilson is suggested. Probably this is a form of recognition for which he would not care, but there can be no doubt that he is destined for high honors in the minds of his countrymen. In a list of happy selections for foreign positions, his has proved one of the most admirable. In the history of a great war his services will always have a distinctive place when those of important Generals and Admirals—so important as have become the conduct of campaigns—will have only routine mention.

The man who was equal to all demands in the Belgian upheaval would command confidence should the contingency specified in the Constitution calls him higher. But even after the next election a work may still remain to be done in Belgium which nobody could do as well as this distinguished man of letters.

WATER OFFICE FINANCE SPREADS.

A Sergeant and three clerical employees of the Police Department have been suspended on a charge of irregularities. It seems that money for unmetered "protection" furnished by the city police was collected somewhat after the plan of inspectors in another municipal department who made unauthorized collections for city water furnished various persons.

The amount is small, but is properly made a subject of energetic action. Peculiar Water Office notions on finance must not be permitted under any circumstances to spread to the other branches of municipal activity.

WIRELESS AS A DEPENDABLE SERVANT.

If the claims made for a reported scientific discovery of Michael Idvorsky Pupin, professor of electro-mechanics at Columbia University, are well founded, an advance of vast importance in promoting free communication among all parts of the world in time of war and lessening the cost of communication in time of peace is about to be made.

But for one fact the Central European Powers might have been indifferent to the cutting of some ocean cables and the control of others by the allies. That one fact is the obstruction which weather conditions offer to wireless messages. Atmospheric disturbance is constantly interfering with radio communication. It interrupts service, often at most critical times, or causes messages to be received in fragmentary form. The result is that a service in which complete dependability is an element essential to value in either war or peace is unreliable.

Prof. Pupin announces that he has discovered electric waves which are unaffected by the weather and may be utilized as satisfactorily in storm as in calm. He is a Serb, born in Hungary, and his own confidence in the importance of his new secret is indicated by his refusal to make it public at this time lest it help the enemies of Serbia in the war.

When plants can be operated at full capacity at all hours of the day and night, these Pupin waves, as applicable to telephones as to telegraphy, ought to render both kinds of service cheap. How, under adverse conditions, they might make possible new triumphs in life-saving at sea is easily discerned. War embargoes on trade may continue, but embargoes on news are broken.

DOCTOR FINED FOR ORDERING EGGS.

Dr. Hasselsthal of Duesseldorf, Germany, has just been fined 500 marks for having prescribed an egg diet to one of his patients, who was suffering from an ulcerated stomach. Besides the fine, he was ordered to pay the 18 marks which the eggs given his patient cost.

The physician pleaded that the egg diet was the best diet for his patient, and that he did not consider restrictions in food to apply to medical cases. His objective was the good of the patient only.

The court held that the doctor was amenable under paragraph 182 of the penal code for having caused an unusual expense during the present stress in foodstuffs, especially those that contain fats. While the plea of the accused would hold good in time of peace, war times smashed all ordinary considerations.

THAT LOCK OF NAPOLEON'S HAIR.

Among other curios in the collection of the late John C. Burton, which was sold at auction in New York the other day, was a lock of Napoleon's hair, cut while he was at St. Helena. It brought $107, and from the price we judge it must have been the little curl in the middle of his forehead.

There was a time when Napoleon himself wouldn't have parted with it for any amount of money. He was extremely vain of it. Josephine toyed with it and professed to adore it. Her famous pearl necklace hung on that curl, as it were. Besides Napoleon had none too much hair on top. (What wouldn't John D. Rockefeller give for a similar wisp of his own?) Bonaparte's portrait painters made much of it, and it has always been the most advertised curl in existence—with the possible exception of the Kaiser's mustache.

Without that revolutionary crinkle dangling just where it did, Napoleon might have been commonplace without distinction, magnetism or the compelling qualities of romance and leadership. History would have been different. Also, if he hadn't had it cut at St. Helena history would have been different. His haircut at St. Helena explains his impotence, like that of Samson sheared, and his inability to break away from St. Helena. On the whole we are thankful that he had it cut, considering how history depends on trifles and the destinies of mankind hang by a hair. The scissors of the Fates never snipped to kinderlier purpose.

A LEADER IN RETREAT.

The Democrats of the House of Representatives should devote serious attention to the letter which Mr. Kitchen of North Carolina has written to one of his constituents. In this communication the Congressman gives expression to several haunting fears. He fears that the President is "going to run his big army and big navy program through Congress." He fears that "practically all of the Republicans will vote for it." He fears that "a large majority of the Democrats will throw away their convictions" and "do the will of the President."

Mr. Kitchen's apprehensions would not interest many people were it not for the fact that by legislative divine right as senior majority member of the Ways and Means Committee he becomes chairman of that body and the leader of his party in the House. How poorly qualified he is to lead anything except a peace society is shown by his own admissions. At a time when reasonable national defense is accepted by nearly all Americans as a vital duty, the man who by accident and not merit becomes a leader faces the rear.

If the Democratic membership of the House has the right spirit, this is a complication which will soon be made more embarrassing for Mr. Kitchen than for anybody else.

THESE DAYS AT CUIVRE ISLAND.

THESE days at Cuivre Island
Are soft with river mist,
And all the world of imagery
The autumn sun has kissed.
It is not like the city,
In which the trees are dead,
Where all the world is colorless
And sodden overhead.

The leaves
Of Cuivre Island
Are golden still
And red

THESE days at Cuivre Island
Are beautiful with frost,
And in the filament of dusk
The marching hills are lost.
The chill of coming Winter
Is breathing through the trees,
And now and then the snow is hushed
Upon a passing breeze.

There are no beauties
Greater
Nor mellow
Than these.

III.

THESE days at Cuivre Island
Are like the leaves they cast
To make a carpet in the woods—
They are not meant to last.
A day to be in beauty,
A day for our delight,
And then the snow shall cover all Immaculately white.

A day for life
And gladness,
And then the chill
Of night.

OUTCLASSED.

THE Devil sat by the lake of fire on a pile of sulphur kegs; his head was bowed upon his breast, his tail between his legs; a look of shame was on his face—the sparks dripped from his eyes—he had sent his resignation to the throne up in the skies. "I'm down and out," the Devil said—he said it with a sob—"there are others that out-class me, and I want to quit my job. Hell isn't in with the land that lies along the Rhine; I'm a has-been and a piker, and therefore, I resign; one ammunition maker, with his bloody shot and shell, knows more about damnation than all the Imps of Hell. Give my job to Kaiser William, or to the Russian Czar, or King George, or J. P. Morgan, or some such man of war. I hate to leave the old home, the spot I love so well, but I feel that I'm not up-to-date in the art of running Hell." And the Devil spit a squirt of steam at a brimstone bumbelee, and muttered that he guessed he'd go and hunt up young John D.—Henry M. Tichenor in the Rapids.

REFUSED.

The Republican Party: Won't you be our candidate for President? Judge Hughes: No, thanks.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

As we have no information bureau, it is impossible to answer queries by mail or telephone.

BEAUTY CULTURE.

G. A. C.—Outstanding warts: Fold large silk handkerchief into flat bandage and bind down ears to head at night for three months. See surgical store for rubber appliance.

MAY.—Blackheads: One ounce tincture of green soap, 30 drops peroxide of hydrogen. Mix and apply with absorbent cotton, rubbing thoroughly. Leave on half an hour, then wash off with cold water. Do this four times a day. A writer on blackheads says: "A bad case of blackheads requires long and careful treatment. I never advise very hot water; it shrivels and dries the skin, but only warm and continued applications of it with soft cloths until the skin is soft and pink. Then, as many of the blackheads are only on the surface, a good washing with clean, warm water and a bland soap will remove them. After that press out all that will come out, fill the face with cold cream well rubbed in. A drop of diluted acetic acid should be applied to each pore as the contents are pressed out."

B. C.—B. J. Lawlor was a member of the City Council in 1903-1905. HARRY.—In 1904 the Liberty Bell was at the St. Louis World's Fair.

CLEANSING.

SUB.—An emulsion of gasoline and water is much used by dry cleaners for removing grease, tar, and paint spots from clothing. It is in the form of a thick white syrup, which evaporates entirely and is not injurious to any fabric or color. The directions for preparing this emulsion should be followed out carefully. Dissolve in 1 qt. of boiling water, ½ oz. of pure-castile soap, and ¼ oz. of gum arabic. Allow this to cool, and then add 1 oz. glycerin, 1 oz. strong ammonia, ¼ oz. chloroform, and 2 ozs. sulphuric ether. Shake well, and pour enough of the mixture into a quart bottle to fill it for ¾ in. On top of this pour not more than ¼ in. of gasoline, and shake until creamy. Repeat the addition of gasoline, shaking each time, until full. The cleansing mixture will then be ready for use, and may be applied with a rag, or small brush. If, on adding the first lot of gasoline and shaking, the mixture does not become emulsified, it proves that too much gasoline has been added. In this case, allow it to stand for a few minutes, and pour off the excess gasoline which comes to the top. Then add a smaller quantity of gasoline. When the bottle is half full, larger quantities of gasoline may be added at a time.—Pop. Mechanics.

LAW POINTS.

THANKS.—If release is properly written, signed and acknowledged, it would bar his right; but see attorney to make certain all necessary matters are contained therein.

GOOD INTENT.—Capable licensed lawyer from another state is admitted in Oklahoma, New Mexico and Nebraska, and probably by the Supreme Court in Kansas, without examination.

R. H.—As a rule, salary garnishment doesn't pay. The one garnishment would not hold good as long as the party holds the same job. When the costs would be depends upon case itself—how things may run.

LANDLORD.—Service on member of family over 15 years is good. Constable has 5 days in which to evict tenant after execution is issued, and he will not doubt use all force necessary in getting in to remove tenant's effects.

WORRIED.—Wife is not bound for contract her husband signed, and which he fails to carry out. If sued under such circumstances wife should defend action, at least so far as she is concerned. Judgment would go against her by default.

PARTY B.—While adjoining owner cannot prevent him from putting sign on his building, he can prevent painters from placing ladders on his property to do so, and cause their arrest for trespass. If scaffold is hung over neighbor's building, overhanging your property, you might get the law hounds into action to cause retreat of painters, they having no right to even hang over your property.

R. J. S.—The form of application for patent is that of a petition, together with an oath that the applicant believes himself to be the first inventor. The application is accompanied by a drawing, and a description of the invention in a clear, full and concise manner. The patent law is very technical and involved, so that it would be an unusual thing for a layman to draw up a really good claim; a faulty claim is worse than none. You should employ a capable patent attorney. The "Guide to Practice" of the Patent Office may be had by writing the Commissioner of Patents, Washington, D. C.

F. D. A. B.—Pawnbroker law: In case the person obtaining the loan fails to pay the interest when due, the pawnbroker shall not sell the article or articles so pawned until the expiration of 30 days from the date of such failure, and the person so failing may, at any time within the 30 days, redeem the article or articles: Provided, that he pay the full amount of principal and interest due at the date of redeeming; but if the person obtaining the loan fail to redeem within the 30 days, he thereby forfeits all his right, title and interest in the article or articles to the pawnbroker, who shall thereupon acquire and possess an absolute right in them, and to hold and dispose of them as his own property. Provided, further, that if the borrower shall lose his pawn ticket he shall not thereby forfeit his right to redeem, but may make affidavit of such loss, describing the property pawned, which affidavit shall take the place of the pawn ticket.

MISCELLANEOUS.

MRS. J. H.—Try phoning brokers. E. K.—Percentage is rate per 100, or proportion in 100 parts.

SUB.—Records of important congressional hearings on bills and resolutions, on file at City, State and Presidential Election days.

HELEN.—If you mean having (possessing) omit got; if you mean getting, not is correct.

D. L.—Time will take the rustle and stiffness out of silk. You might try a hot iron on it.

INFORMANT.—Write Aerial Age Weekly, Chicago, for information in regard to learning aviation.

THANKFUL.—Free treatment for cigarette habit, 1210 Locust, and Christ Church Cathedral, Thirteenth and Locust.

SUBSCRIBER.—Write Bureau of Immigration, Department of Labor, Washington, D. C., in regard to records of German immigrants.

INQUIRER.—If for 2 years a gas consumer has taken advantage of his discount, his deposit is refunded. This applies to dwellings only. See the gas office.

BOTANICAL.—With sufficient moisture and heat not over 65 degrees, fern may live in steam-heated flat "Rumple" plant is easier managed in winter; the leaves should be cleaned once a week.

M. R. S.—Write again to the Secretary of State, Washington, D. C., in regard to passport, and register your letter to try to get the Congressman of your district interested in the matter. The State Department is doubtless very busy and there may have been some unavoidable delay.

WALDRON.—A watchmaker says he could not advise a dead nut to try to learn watchmaking. An auto expert thinks it would be difficult to find one who would teach him auto repairing. The Gallaudet School is, of course, at Henricetta and Thirteenth. "Radio Avenue" was an error, made in some unaccountable way.

WASH.—For a three or four course after-theater repast, start with blue points or grapefruit or fruit salad or a light soup of some kind. Such reliables as olives, celery and salted almonds may be brought on for following course. A lobster, broiled, stuffed or a la Newburg, is appropriate for a well-dressed table. Or, if you are so inclined, a cold chicken salad. This may be followed with an ice or ice cream, cake and coffee, or cheese and coffee.

PART II.

THE private was the gunner's prey—I knew that the affair had fallen as the gunner had said, for my friend is constitutionally incapable of lying—and I recognized that in his hands lay the boy's fate.

"What do you think?" said Gunner Barnabas after a silence broken only by the convulsive breathing of the boy he was sitting on. "I think nothing," I said. "He didn't go to me. He's your property." Then an idea occurred to me. "Hand him over to his own company. They'll school him half dead." "Got no comp'n'y," said Gunner Barnabas. "It's a convalescent draft—all sixes an' sevens. Don't matter to them what he did."

"Thrash him yourself, then," I said. Gunner Barnabas looked at the man and smiled; then caught up an arm, as a mother takes up the dimpled arm of a child, and ran the sleeve and shirt up to the elbow. "Look at that!" he said. It was a pitiful arm, lean and muscular. "Can you mill a man with an arm like that—such as I would like to mill him, an' such as he deserves? I tell you, sir, an' I am not smokin' (swaggering), as you see—I could take that man—sodger 'e is, Lord 'elp 'im—an' twis' off 'is arms an' 'is legs is 'e was a naked crab. See here!"

Before I could realize what was going to happen, Gunner Barnabas rose up, stooped, and taking the wretched Private Shacklock by two points of grasp, heaved him up above his head. The boy kicked once or twice, and then was still. He was very white. "I could now," said Gunner Barnabas, "I could now chuck this man where I like. Chuck him like a lump o' beef, an' it would not be too much for him if I chucked. Can you thrash such a man with both 'ands? No, nor yet with my right 'and tied behind my back, an' my left 'in a sling."

HE dropped Private Shacklock on the ground, and sat upon him as before. The boy groaned as the weight settled, but there was a look in his white-lashed, red eyes that was not pleasant.

"I do not know what I will do," said Gunner Barnabas, rocking himself to and fro. "I know 'is breed, an' the way o' the likes o' them. If I was in 'is comp'n'y, an' 'is 'ad 'appened, an' I 'ad struck 'im, as I would ha' struck him, 'twould ha' 'ad passed off an' 'bin forgot 'ill the drink was in 'imaginal—ano'rich, maybe, or six, maybe. An' when the drink was frizzin' in 'is 'ead he would up and loose off in the night or the day or the evenin'. All accuse of that millin' 'at 'e would 'ad forgotten in between. That I would be dead—killed by the likes o' 'im, an' me the next strongest man but three in the British army!"

Private Shacklock, not so hardly pressed as he had been, found breath to say that if he could only get hold of the fowling piece again the strongest man but three in the British army would be seriously crippled for the rest of his days. "Hear that!" said Gunner Barnabas, sitting heavily to silence his chair. "Hear that, you that think things is funny to put into the papers! He would shoot me, 'e would, now, an' so long as he's drunk, or comin' out o' the drink, 'e will want to shoot me. Look a-here!"

He turned the boy's head sideways, his hand round the nape of the neck, his thumb touching the angle of the jaw. "What do you call those marks?" They were the white scars of scrofula, with which Shacklock was eaten up. I told Gunner Barnabas this. "I don't know what that means. I call 'em murder-marks, an' signs. If a man 'as these things on 'im an' 'drinks, so long as 'e's drunk, 'e's mad—a looney. But that doesn't 'elp if 'e kills you. Look a-here, an' here!"

The marks were thick on the jaw and neck. "Stubbs 'ad 'em," said Gunner Barnabas to himself. "an' Lancy 'ad 'em, an' Duggard 'ad 'em, an' 'wo's come to them? You've got 'em," he said, addressing himself to the man he was handling like a roped calf, "an' sooner or later you'll go with the rest o' 'em. But this time I will not do anything—exceptin' keep you here till the drink's dead in you."

GUNNER BARNABAS resettled himself and continued: "Twice this afternoon, Shacklock, you 'ave been so near dyin' that I know no man more so. Once was when I stretched you, an' might ha' wiped off your face with my boot as you was lyin' an' once was when I lifted you up in my fists. Was you afraid, Shacklock?"

"I were," murmured the half-stiffed soldier.

"An' once more I will show you how near you can go to Kingdom Come in my 'ands." He knelt by Shacklock's side, the boy lying still as death. "I was to hit you here," said he, "I would break your chest, an' you would die. If I was to put my 'and here, an' my other 'and here, I would twis' your neck, an' you would die, Private Shacklock. If I was to put my knee here and put your 'ead so, I would pull off your 'ead. Private Shacklock, an' you would die. If you think as how I am a liar, say so, an' I'll show you. Do you think so?"

"No," whispered Private Shacklock, not daring to move a muscle, for Barnabas' hand was on his neck. "Now, remember," went on Barnabas, "neither you will say nothing nor I will say nothing o' what has happened. I ha' put you to shame before me an' this gentleman here, an' that is enough. But I tell you, an' you give 'eed now, it would be better for you to desert than to go on a-servin' where you are now. If I meets you again—if my Batt'ry lays with your Regiment, an' Private Shacklock is on the rolls, I will first mill you myself till you can't see, and then I will say why I strook you. You must go, an' look bloomin' slippy about it, for if you stay, so sure as God made Paythans an' we've got to 'is 'ad out, you'll be losin' off o' unauthorized amminition—in or out o' barricks, an' you'll be 'anged for it. I know your breed, an' I know what these 'ere white marks mean. You're mad, Shacklock, that's all—and here you stay, under me. An' now choop, an' lie still."

I waited and smoked, and Gunner Barnabas smoked till the shadows smothered the hillside, and a chilly wind began to blow. At dusk Gunner Barnabas rose and looked at his captive. "Drink 'out o' 'im now," he said.

"Can't move," whimpered Shacklock. "I've got the fever back again."

"I'll carry you," said Gunner Barnabas, swinging him up and propelling to climb the hill. "Good-night, sir," he said to me. "It looks pretty, doesn't it? But never you forget, an' I won't forget, neither, that this 'ere shiverin', shakin', convalescent 'ad hangin' on to my neck is a ragin', tearin', devil when 'e's lousy—an' 'e

He strode up to the hill with his burden, but just before he disappeared into the shadows, he shouted: "It's the likes o' 'im brings shame on the likes o' us. Taint 'us ourselves, 'elp me Gawd 'elp 'im!"

THE END.

The Old Flag

By Mrs. F. A. Walker.

IT was June. But the day was cool, the sun shone brightly on the crowds that thronged the village streets. For it was Flag day and the people were celebrating the event.

In the yard of a tiny cottage in the midst of a bare field sat old Sergt. London. His faded blue uniform looked rusty and his gray hair uncombed. In fact, the whole place had a look of dilapidation as if everything were tumbling to pieces, for there was no one to see to things about the house since Jim, who was but 15, had to go to work in the factory.

Jim wanted to go in the army, but he knew he had to care for his grandfather whose small pension would not afford him support alone, for the Sergt. did not wish to go to a soldier's home as long as he could be with his only grandchild. So Jim and the Sergt. got along the best they could, but there was not much of any "best" about it.

But today the old Sergt. was happy. He could see all about him the fluttering of flags, even though he was too poor to buy one. If he only had a new, big one to hang from his humble porch!

DOWN the street he could see a crowd assembling and a boy ran by at full speed.

"Gen. Edwards is coming up the street in a few minutes leading a procession," said the boy as he passed for a moment.

The Sergt. shook his head. He was too poor to buy one, but he did not let his neighbors know that. Then suddenly he remembered—he did have a flag. Stumbling as fast as his aged legs would carry him he went into the house. Back under his bed 'as an old chest, and this he opened reverently. From its depth he took a bundle wrapped carefully in brown paper.

Slowly he cut the string and unwrapped the covering. Out on the bed tumbled a flag. But it was not new and bright. Grim with the smoke of battle, blackened by powder stains, torn by bullets, it hung limp and dusty.

"It is the old flag of my regiment," whispered the Sergt. in an awed voice. "The one the boys carried through shot and shell for months. It is not bright, but far more beautiful for its stains. I will hang it out—it will be the greatest flag of all."

Up the street came the sounds of bands, and the tramp of marching feet, the sidewalks filled with the usual crowd of small boys preceding a procession. Under the arching trees the parade came, dozens of bright banners borne aloft till their fluttering tops stirred the leaves.

Return of the Full Skirt Brings Woman Back to Her Unaffected Gait, With an Athletic Suggestion—Dame Fashion, However, Has Not Favored the Numerous Accompanying Petticoats Once Deemed So Necessary an Adjunct.

THE easy, unaffected gait, with a sort of feminine athletic suggestion, is a most pleasant accompaniment of the full skirt. This freedom of movement is welcome, for it heralds a long delayed return to a more graceful "allure." Not yet, however, have the numerous petticoats which we once considered so necessary with the full skirt been favored by Dame Fashion.

Here is designed a frock which is adaptable to serge, and one which, on account of its neck line, will be found more becoming to the oval-faced girl than the round-faced one.

At the left what might be dark blue serge is cut in a medium full gored skirt over which a short tunic of serge is dropped. The skirt has no claims on this tunic, however, as it may be in one piece with the waist. Open across the front, a slit on each side offers opportunity for the belt to continue its way around in duty to the fullness at the sides and back, which must needs be confined. Red braiding to form a band trimming on the edge of the tunic affords an attractive introduction of color which is repeated in more generous width across the front of the waist.

A narrow band of the braiding is a pretty way of outlining the neck line and arm holes, where a glimpse of white silk may reward its efforts. If white is not desirable, sleeves of serge may be used, with a yoke of blue silk, completed by a circular flare of white or gandy. A sash of black satin drops its tasseled ends at the side.

The model at the right suggests the use of check and plain material for a nobby dress, trimmed only with many rows of stitching, and perhaps a silk yoke to give a dressy touch.

THE END.

The Lure of the Movies

SAID Bingie: "I think I'd best take in a show. I crave entertainment. Now, where shall I go? Grand opera might prove a wonderful treat, and yet a good drama would be hard to beat. However, I feel that it's light tunes I need. I'd fancy a musical trick with some speed." He thought it all over; he pondered some time, then went to the movies and picked down his dime.

"Have you got the flag?" "Tonight I shall call on sweet Kitty Cooley, the queen of them all. I'll tell her I love her and ask her to wed. It's time I was married—it is, on the dead." Jim put on his coat and he hurried away. But did Kitty see him that evening? Nay, nay! He sidetracked his visit till "some other time," and went to the movies and planked down his dime.

Slowly he cut the string and unwrapped the covering. Out on the bed tumbled a flag. But it was not new and bright. Grim with the smoke of battle, blackened by powder stains, torn by bullets, it hung limp and dusty.

"It is the old flag of my regiment," whispered the Sergt. in an awed voice. "The one the boys carried through shot and shell for months. It is not bright, but far more beautiful for its stains. I will hang it out—it will be the greatest flag of all."

Up the street came the sounds of bands, and the tramp of marching feet, the sidewalks filled with the usual crowd of small boys preceding a procession. Under the arching trees the parade came, dozens of bright banners borne aloft till their fluttering tops stirred the leaves.

THE old Sergt. stood at his broken gate with his flag waving. Brightly lit sun shone on his whitening hair and on the tattered banner which he waved so proudly. Proudly the men swept past to the sound of drums and fifes, and then in an open carriage came Gen. Edwards. His eye caught sight of the old flag.

"Halt!" he ordered, and the parade stood still. Without pausing a moment he dropped from the carriage and walked over to the old Sergt.

"Where did you get this flag?" asked

The Woman Who Dared

A Married Life Serial of Utmost Interest.

Chapter XIV.

INWARDLY raging, but outwardly calm, I waited for his answer. Then, once again, I asked: "Was that necklace Miss Arnott was wearing the one you allowed me to wear at your dinner?"

"Yes, it was the same necklace. But I didn't know she was going to wear it. I told you I didn't know she was invited," he blustered, but underneath his bluster I thought I detected a certain shame. "And, by Gad, she shall wear it whenever I choose."

"Then I shall never wear it again." "That will be as I say!" and without another word he turned off the light and went to bed. I waited until I knew by his breathing that he was asleep, then I too, undressed and crawled into bed.

In the morning neither Haskell nor I mentioned the necklace, but after he left I could not dismiss it from my mind. I felt belittled, insulted. The day dragged miserably.

ABOUT 3 o'clock Erie Lucknow called. I had tried to put him from my mind. I had determined never to see him alone again. But my loneliness was too acute, the desire for companionship to great, so in spite of my resolutions I hurried down to greet him.

"You see I have again broken my parole," he said, as I welcomed him with frank delight. "What?" I questioned, forgetting. "Don't you remember I said I was not coming again, unless Mr. Borroughs invited me. But this afternoon I felt it impossible to remain away. It seemed as if there were something drawing me, as if—pardon me—you needed me."

"It did need you," I thought, but aloud I said: "Now that you are here, you will please make the best of my society and stay to tea."

James brought the tea, and for an hour Erie Lucknow made me forget my unhappiness. Haskell's neglect, and Madeline Arnott.

I was so happy with him that I did not try to hide my emotion. That he realized I needed help I appreciated, and that he was doing his utmost to make me forget I understood. What I did not understand was that there might be danger for me, my peace of mind, in my association with Erie Lucknow. I wondered what he would say did he know the conditions under which I lived, the drear, unhappy hours when alone I tried to argue myself into a state of quiescence; and was tempted to confide in him. My pride was all that prevented.

"I shall not see you again for some time," he said, as he rose to go. "Business will take me away to the Coast. I leave tomorrow."

FOR a moment my heart seemed to stop beating. I dimly realized what Erie Lucknow, his occasional presence had meant to me. And with the realization came a certain shame that I could allow any man, save my husband, to mean anything at all to me. This feeling of shame so tinged my manner at parting that I was sure he misunderstood me. Yet I could say or do nothing to overcome it, and the hurt look in his eyes as he turned away remained with me until I saw him again.

When Haskell came home I told him Mr. Lucknow had called.

"Making love to you, I suppose," he sneered.

"No, Haskell," I replied humbly. "I have more respect for my duties as a wife than you appear to have for yours as a husband. Neither Mr. Lucknow nor any other man has ever said a word to me that you might not have heard. Can you say as much?"

Some New Recipes

Squash Pie—One and one-quarter cups steamed and strained squash, ¼ cup sugar, ½ teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon cinnamon, ¼ cup (1 fl. oz.) lemon extract (if like nutmeg best), 1 egg, ½ cup milk. Mix sugar, salt and spice or extract, add squash, egg, slightly beaten and milk gradually. Bake in one crust. If a richer pie is desired use 1 cup squash, ½ cup each of milk and cream and an additional egg yolk.

Creamed Bacon—Brown bacon until crisp and fry it slowly. Place it on a platter and drain off the grease all but enough to saturate smoothly a good teaspoon of flour. Slowly add 2 or 3 cups of milk and stir until rather thick, season with salt and pepper and pour over the bacon. Serve with boiled mashed potatoes.

Baked Halibut—Three or four pounds of halibut. Dip the dark skin in boiling water, and scrape clean. Rub well with salt and pepper. Put into pan and pour milk over it till half an inch deep. Bake about an hour, basting with the milk. When the fish is nearly done sprinkle buttered crumbs over the top. The milk keeps the fish moist, is a good substitute for pork and makes the fish brown better. Use just enough milk to baste, and let it cook away toward the last. Serve with plain drawn butter, egg sauce or tomato sauce and garnish with slices of hard-boiled eggs.

After experimenting for three years the United States Bureau of Standards has developed apparatus for determining the exact fineness of cement.

NUGENT OFFERS A NEW ROUTE FOR DOWNTOWN LOOP

Suggests Cars Entering City on Free Bridge Run North to Morgan on Fourth.

At a public hearing of the Board of Public Utilities Hooke, Dan C. Nugent, president of the E. Nugent & Sons, Dry Goods Co., proposed as a substitute loop extending from the western terminus of the municipal free bridge, north on Eleventh street to Clark avenue, east to Fourth street, north to Morgan street, west to Eleventh or Twelfth street, south to Clark avenue, east to Seventh street, south to the bridge.

The loop proposed by Director Hooke, which was planned by Charles S. Butts, chief designing engineer in the Department of Public Utilities, is north on Seventh street to Chestnut street, west to Eleventh street, south to Clark avenue, east to Seventh street and south to the bridge. The plan contemplates the use of the old city hall as a passenger station and the Four Courts as a freight station.

Nugent suggested that the Union Market could be used for a central interurban station. He suggested also that passenger stations might be placed at Fourth street and Clark avenue and at Fourth and Morgan streets.

The cars now using Fourth street, Nugent said, could use Broadway or Sixth street and the Easton cars, which now go west on Franklin avenue and east on Morgan street, could be reversed.

J. E. Fogg, representing the Real Estate Exchange, said the organization approved the Butts plan. Thomas C. Young, assistant traffic manager of the Business Men's League, urged the board to go slow. President Kinsey said the bridge would be completed next October and the loop should be completed at the same time.

T. H. Stearns, representing the Illinois Traction Co., said his company would be glad to co-operate by operating cars over a loop to a central station.

$1,240 JUDGMENTS AGAINST MRS. RIDGLY AND ASSOCIATES

Deductions Entered in 7 Out of 29 Cases in Shelby County, Ill., Against Missouri Land Exploiters.

SHELBYVILLE, Ill., Nov. 19.—Judgments totaling $1,240.42 were taken Wednesday afternoon and yesterday forenoon in the Shelby County Circuit Court here, in seven cases against James H. Downs, Mrs. Orah D. Ridgely of Assumption and their associates in various enterprises that resulted in the filing of 29 suits against them in this court, and more in Christian County. The defendants are also to pay the costs. Twenty-two other cases remain to be adjudicated.

The taking of judgments began with the case of H. M. Evans and Garrett Ellison against the Orah Land and Mining Co., James K. Cochran, James T. Long, Mrs. Ridgely and Downs, in which judgment for $15,199.33 was entered. In another case of the same plaintiffs and defendants judgment was taken for $12,841.68.

Other judgments were taken by default as follows: Bank of Warren County vs. Cochran et al., $29.84; Bank of Slater vs. Cochran et al., $25.67; H. M. Evans vs. Cochran et al., $891.19; First National Bank of Atchison vs. Downs et al., $617.44; Security National Bank of Kansas City vs. Downs et al., $282.17.

Downs and his wife have filed two mortgages here for $50,000 each, on about 400 acres of land in this and Christian counties.

Long and Mrs. Ridgely are under indictment at Belleville charged with defrauding Frank J. Wattowa, a clothing merchant, by a confidence game. The criminal and civil proceedings grew out of exploitation of Southeast Missouri lands and the Ozark Valley Railroad.

MOTHER GAINS CUSTODY OF "MILLION-DOLLAR PAPOOSE"

Wealthy Father Who Died Had Been Awarded the Child in Divorce Proceedings.

TULSA, Ok., Nov. 19.—Mrs. Gladys Dixon Vance, mother of Ben Vance, the "million-dollar papoose," was awarded the custody of her child in District Court last night as the result of habeas corpus proceedings. The case will be appealed. Mrs. Vance, 19 years old, and her husband, an Indian who became wealthy through his holdings in the Cushing oil field, were divorced shortly before his death. He was awarded the custody of their child and in his will cut off his divorced wife without a cent, making his father administrator. Mrs. Vance is seeking to have the divorce set aside. It is said the income from the oil holdings of the Vance estate is $18,000 a month.

ORDER PROTECTS POSTOFFICES

Small Towns to Send Cash to Large Offices During Holiday Season.

Postmasters in about 500 small offices of the St. Louis district, which includes Missouri, Arkansas and Iowa, have received instructions to send all their surplus stamps and money to the larger offices and retain only sufficient cash and stamps to meet immediate needs. Postoffice officials here believe the order is due to the fact that the holiday season is the time for a large number of attempts to rob the smaller offices in the country districts.

PIRATES' BOOTY IS DUG UP ON DARIEN'S SHORES

Chest Full of Pearls, Gold Ornaments and Old Coins Brought to New York.

NEW YORK, Nov. 19.—A teak chest full of pirate treasure has been brought here by Randall C. Lewis, a magazine writer of this city, from Santa Maria, Colombia. Lewis said it was part of booty believed to be worth $1,000,000, which had been unearthed on the sandy shore of the Gulf of Darien, the wedge-shaped indentation in the northern coast of Colombia.

The treasure includes pearls of rainbow color, due to the action of the salt from the sea, gold ornaments, gold bracelets, anklets and a gold breastplate, 400 old Spanish and French coins and a flint musket and a powder horn in the chest.

It had long been the belief that pirates used Darien's shores as a giant safe deposit box, said Lewis, and the loot had long been sought. It remained for an expedition headed by Capt. Sackville White, an English veteran of the Boer War, to turn up the biggest hoard. Lewis, a friend of Capt. White, brought the treasure here to have it valued.

DAWSON-AUTENREITH WEDDING TO BE AT THE BRIDE'S HOME

Stepdaughter of John H. Schroeder Is Known as an Expert Auto Driver.

The engagement of Miss Ethel Decamero Dawson, stepdaughter of John H. Schroeder, 6182 Westminster place, secretary of the Rutledge-Taylor Coal Co., to F. William Autenreith of Clayton, was announced on Monday, at a bridge luncheon given at the Schroeder home. The wedding will be on Jan. 1, at the bride's home.

Miss Dawson, who is 22 years old, is fond of athletics, being an excellent horsewoman and swimmer, and known as an expert auto driver. Two years ago she won the M. A. A. automobile reliability tour, being the only woman among 24 contestants. Last summer she drove an automobile to Detroit and back without a mishap.

Miss Dawson and Autenreith met on an automobile tour several years ago. After a honeymoon spent in travel, they will live at the bride's home.

U. S. NAVY CHAPLAIN DIES

Father Reaney Introduced Boxing on Board Ships.

NEW YORK, Nov. 19.—The Rev. Father William Henry Ironsides Reaney, chaplain of the United States navy, who died here last night, was often called the father of boxing in the United States navy. He also introduced other athletic sports among the sailors. The story is told that he once defeated Tom Sharkey, the sailor pugilist, when Sharkey's conduct at service on board ship displeased the chaplain.

THE SALE WE PROMISED YOU—THE SALE WE PREPARED FOR YOU

The Great Sale of "STERLING" Coats and Suits

THEIR END-OF-SEASON SURPLUS STOCK AT LESS THAN HALF PRICE

We told you something big was going to happen. We told you we were preparing a sale of Coats and Suits that would start all St. Louis and vicinity talking about "Garland's" and "Sterling" Coats and Suits. We told you we had prepared for the biggest single day's business in our history. We told you to watch—wait—listen—for the announcement. We told you that it would be within the next two or three days. This was the only place we erred. The thousand garments referred to in our Thursday message as not then received, reached us before we had finished marking the first lot. So we decided to make it a SATURDAY EVENT.

A SATURDAY SALE

Thereby giving the opportunity to several thousand women—teachers, both local and suburban, business women and others who never have a full day for shopping except Saturday—to give them the opportunity to share in the unprecedented savings on their Winter Coat or Tailored Suit.

2700 "Sterling" Coats—1957 "Sterling" Suits—4657 garments. The biggest single purchase we have made this season—and at the biggest price concession of the year.

"Sterling" Coats—"Sterling" Suits?

You know the meaning of the word "Sterling" when you see it on a piece of silverware. That's its meaning when applied to a "Sterling" Coat or Suit. It's genuine—it's pure wool—guaranteed tailoring—"correct" style. It means Coat or Suit Satisfaction. These are the things the word "Sterling" mean, and every time we sell a Sterling Coat or Suit it means satisfaction to us—because we know we have made a new customer or everlastingly clinched the friendship of an old one—either of which will have a new conception of garment satisfaction.

2700 Coats, 100 Styles, $5.98 $10 and $15
Values to $27.50, in 3 Lots, for This Sale at.....

Detail Story of This Sale

We are large distributors of "Sterling" Coats and Suits. We sell several thousands of their garments every season. Early this month they were ready to dispose of their surplus stocks to get ready for Spring orders. They had rounded out a big and profitable season's business, and "price" was not as much of an object as a quick disposal. The entire 4650 garments were exceptionally suitable for our Midwinter discriminating trade. We bought them—they are here for Saturday's sale. The rest of the story is told in the figures below.

1957 Suits, 100 Styles, $5.98 $10 and $15
Values to $35.00, in 3 Lots, for This Sale at.....

The Picture Above Shows 8 of the Hundred Suit Styles, and 8 of Hundred or More Coat Styles.

IN THE COATS There's a style for every personality—a cloth for every taste—a color for every fancy. To describe them all would be to tell of everything seen in coutdum—and many styles that will be seen here tomorrow for the first time.

FUR TRIMMING is in evidence—"Chin Chin" fur collars, fur cuffs. Belted and plain models, styles that flare from the hips, others flare and hang loose from the shoulders. Sports and 7/8 lengths and plenty of all sizes for women, misses and juniors.

$5.98 for Coats worth up to $12.50
$10 for Coats worth up to $20
$15 for Coats worth up to $27.50

IN THE SUITS You couldn't pick an undesirable style if you tried. In coat length every woman, miss and junior can find her style. The knee length Coats are very "new"—34-inch Russian styles—27-inch box styles. Every good fabric—every smart color.

FUR TRIMMING Predominates—fur collar around bottom of coat on many—braided trimming also for those who don't want fur—and plain tailor-mades for the women with conservative tastes. Sizes for everybody.

$5.98 for Suits worth up to $15
$10 for Suits worth up to $25
$15 for Suits worth up to $35

INCLUDED IN THIS GREAT PURCHASE WERE 500 CHILDREN'S COATS 6 TO 19 YEARS—ARRANGED IN 3 LOTS

UPHOLDS RIGHT OF GOVERNMENT TO USE ALL PATENTS

Federal Court Renders Decision in Case of Wireless Equipment for Battleship.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.
NEW YORK, Nov. 19.—The arm of the Government may be strengthened for naval or military purposes at any time it sees fit and at the expense of any individual or corporation to whom it has granted a patent, according to a ruling made by Federal Judge Charles M. Hough in an injunction and accounting suit brought by the Marconi Wireless Telegraph Co. of America against Emil J. Simon, a radio engineer.

This ruling was based on an equity suit filed by the Marconi company against Simon, who they asked be enjoined from infringing on their patent in the construction of radio apparatus for the United States under a contract Simon had with the Navy Department. Judge Hough in his opinion says:
"The Navy Department has employed Simon to construct radio apparatus without which certain war vessels now approaching completion cannot go into commission. If Simon does not complete the articles for which he has contracted, injury to the military arm of the Government will result. No injunction will be issued in any way interfering with the contract now existing between Simon and the United States."
"In time of trouble, at periods when the arm of the Government is in need of strengthening, the executive may be left in the exercise of powers perhaps doubtful in law, but temporarily necessary for national safety by the refusal of drastic relief and the remission of private litigants to slower processes of recalculation of recompense."

ST. LOUIS MUST GET UP EARLY TO SEE LIBERTY BELL

Children to View It Before 9, Sunday Morning, at DeBali-viere and Lindell.

PARADE TO BEGIN AT 8
Start of Relic East Will Be Made at 10:30—in East St. Louis From 11:20 to 11:40.

1000 Houston Children Up Till 3:30 A. M. to Greet the Liberty Bell

WHEN the Liberty Bell, on its homeward journey to Philadelphia, reached Houston, at 3:30 this morning, six hours late, 2000 persons, of whom more than a thousand were school children, greeted it.
William H. Ball, chief custodian of the bell, declared it was the most remarkable gathering he had seen on the trip across the continent. "To show appreciation of the patriotism of 2000 people, willing to brave the cold all night," he said, "we will violate our rule and permit those present to get on the car and lay their hands on the bell."
Boys and girls climbed aboard, and many kissed the relic. One man, with a Confederate badge on his lapel, wept.
After an hour and a half the Liberty Bell train departed for Beaumont.

The luxury of late Sunday morning naps will be denied to the members of military bodies and uniformed secret societies, who will parade Sunday morning in honor of the Liberty Bell's visit to St. Louis.

Seven thirty is the time at which the aids to the grand marshal, Col. A. B. Donnelly, will be required to report to his chief of staff, Col. Horace S. Rumsey, in front of the St. Louis Club. At the same time staffs of division marshals will report to their respective chiefs.

What they will be expected to report is that their men are ready. That will mean that the paraders will have to gather in the neighborhood of Grand avenue and Lindell boulevard, very soon after 7 o'clock.
Parade to Start Early.
The line is to reach the Liberty Bell's special car by 9 o'clock, and it is a long way from Grand avenue to DeBali-viere avenue, when one walks and is subject to the delays of a parade. So the start will be made soon after 8.

While the parade is on its way west, the school children will be inspecting the bell at DeBali-viere avenue. This means early rising for parents and children, for the children will be expected to get through looking at the bell by 9, and to be lined up along Lindell avenue, watching the parade. The bell will have to start east at 10, and will be in East St. Louis from 11:20 to 11:40.

Marchers in Four Divisions.
The parade will be in four divisions, the first comprising active military and naval bodies, the second Veteran organizations, the third Boy Scouts and the fourth uniformed secret societies.

The bell's visit to St. Louis was brought about by petitions to the Philadelphia authorities, circulated last spring in the public schools by the Post Dispatch. The bell is on its way home to Philadelphia from the Panama-Pacific Exposition in San Francisco.

ROGERS LEGALLY HOLDS HIS EFFICIENCY JOB, DAUES RULES
City Counselor Tells Aldermen That Phrase of Freeholders Is Not Quite Clear.

In an opinion sent to the Board of Aldermen today, City Counselor Dues ruled that Thomas H. Rogers is entitled to his job as chairman of the Efficiency Board, although he acquired it only a short time after resigning as secretary to the Mayor.

The opinion says that minutes of the Board of Freeholders indicate that the framers of the new charter intended to bar from the Efficiency Board anyone who was holding office at the time the charter was drawn, but that the exact wording of the charter does not express this intention.

After questioning 14 of 93 candidates recently examined by the Efficiency Board for appointment, the Municipal Electric Inspection Bureau, two members of the Complaint Board yesterday said they had found that the examination was inefficiently conducted.

Lewis T. Time and Maurice J. Cassidy, were the Complaint Board members who decided the Efficiency Board had shown inefficiency.

Business Women's Section Makes Good Showing in Collections.

The business woman's section of the Y. W. C. A. campaign organization made the best showing in yesterday's collections in the effort to raise a $50,000 fund for the maintenance of the Y. W. C. A. for the coming year. Team 3 of workers in St. Louis garment factories, team 1, the merchants of which are housewives, and team D, all children, each brought in good collections, running the total to $783.45 for the day.

The largest individual collection came from Mrs. Ashley Cabell of Kirkwood. It was $220.

HELD ON A GIRL'S CHARGE

East St. Louis Barber Arrested and Released on Bond.

Leonidas J. Heller, 56 years old, a barber of 1801 St. Clair avenue, was arrested on a complaint sworn to by

Mrs. Lena Dwyer, police matron, on a charge of enticing Lela Cassner, 14 years old, 1802 Bank avenue, into his barber shop. Subpoenas have been issued for six other girls about the same age, to testify against Heller. They are Phyllis Dumick, 1841 John street; Hazel Hobbs, 1821 St. Clair avenue; Hattie Boze, 1635 John street;

Gertrude Martin, 1835 Parsons avenue; Helen Craighall, Seventeenth street and Parsons avenue; and Helen Campbell, whose address is given as 703 Ohio avenue. Larkin and O'Brien, Heller, a widower, refused to discuss the charge. He was released by Police Magistrate Driscoll on $500 bond, to appear for trial tomorrow morning.

CLOGGED KIDNEYS CAUSE MANY PAINFUL ILLS

New Discovery Dissolves Impurities That Stop Up Body Drains.—Backaches, Headaches, Lumbago and Rheumatic Pains Then Quickly Disappear.

It is the work of the kidneys to filter the impurities and waste matter from the blood. If they start to clog up with uric acid crystals and poisonous sediment you are on the borderland of serious disease. You can't strain water thru a clogged-up sieve, neither can the kidneys strain the poisons out of the blood if the filtering membranes are clogged with these uric acid crystals. What is the result? The waste matter is forced back into the system and is carried by the blood to all parts of the body. Tiny acid crystals are deposited in the joints and muscles where they don't belong and soon the trouble starts. Uncomfortable aches and pains begin to make themselves felt in the back and joints and every fiber will soon be crying out that there is something wrong with the plumbing. Unless these signals are heeded at once you are running the risk of serious complications.

The only way on earth to permanently and positively relieve such conditions is to remove the cause.

For this there is nothing better than the recommendations made for Solvax, the new, inexpensive, and quick acting kidney treatment. It goes straight to the seat of the trouble and is designed to dissolve the uric acid sediment that is holding the kidneys from doing their work properly. When Solvax starts cleaning out the kidneys a complete change is felt immediately. The blood reaching the kidneys loaded with waste is now strained and filtered and goes pumping back through the arteries clean and pure, washing all impurities before it. When the poisonous acid is washed out of the joints and muscles, the pains and aches disappear and the whole being brightens up as if by magic.

Try Solvax today. You are cheating yourself out of your full enjoyment of life if you don't help your kidneys to do their work properly. Wolff-Wilson Drug Co. and other reliable druggists have Solvax. It is inexpensive, harmless and very easy to take. Always sold under a guarantee of satisfaction or money back.—ADV.

ST. LOUIS YOUTH, ABROAD 5 YEARS, HERE AS SOLOIST

Albert Stoessel, Violinist, to Realize Ambition to Appear With Symphony Orchestra.

PLAYED BEFORE KAISERIN

He Later Became Teacher for Prince Osman, Heir to Turkish Throne.

Albert Stoessel, 21 years old, left St. Louis five years ago for Berlin, a hopeful violin student. He returned today as the soloist at the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra concert this afternoon.

When seen before the concert at the Hotel Jefferson with his father, A. J. Stoessel of 2138 Newstead avenue, also a musician, the young virtuoso said that his great dream of some day appearing with the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra as a soloist was about to be realized.

"I feel that I owe more to America than Europe for what I may ever be," he said to a Post-Dispatch reporter. "I came of a musical family, and even before I graduated from the Ashland Public

HE WAS VIOLIN TEACHER FOR TURKISH PRINCE

ALBERT STOESSEL

School, eight years ago, I had begun playing. Then I studied under Hugo Oik, the Symphony concertmeister. He gave me a wonderful ground-work.

Studied Under Prof. Wirth. "In Berlin I studied under Prof. Emanuel Wirth one year and then in the Royal High School of Music. Shortly afterward I became a member of the Willy-Hess quartet, noted in Europe for its chamber music. I even organized a trio of my own.

"All this time I was practicing, practicing, practicing. Five hours daily were given to the violin alone, and many more to composition and allied subjects. I made my debut as a soloist with the orchestra at the Gernheim festival at Nordhausen, March, 1914. I appeared in Berlin Nov. 14, 1914.

"Three days later I had one of the most wonderful experiences in my life. I played before the Empress and 1800 wounded soldiers in the Emperor William Memorial Church. I will never forget that day. The soldiers came in, some hobbling on crutches, others with arms in slings, and a few blind men were led by their comrades. Those who had wives or sweethearts in Berlin were accompanied by them.

"In a box high above the altar was seated the Empress. An organ number was the first. There was an intense silence. And a little later I played for them.

Teacher of Turkish Prince. Shortly after that Stoessel was chosen to become the teacher of Prince Osman Fuad, the heir to the Turkish throne.

Young Stoessel's ambition is to be among the world's greatest creative and interpretative violinists.

"I'm willing to pay the price in hard work, if I can only win my goal," he said. "Success will mean my giving up many pleasures which the average fellow of my age can enjoy, but anything worth while means sacrifice. The time has passed when a European reputation counts for everything. Now America demands that an artist 'deliver the goods', no matter where he studied. America should be the great musical center of the future.

"I am doing much composing now, and have eight violin compositions accepted by an Eastern publisher. Vieuxtemps' Concerto, which I play here, was rearranged by me, as in its original form the orchestration was too 'muddy'; and the violin part shallow. It pleased in Germany."

While he spent so many years abroad, Stoessel is proud of his American citizenship.

"Shortly after the war started in Germany," he said, "I volunteered to assist the American Relief Commission in Berlin, and before I sailed for home I received a personal letter of appreciation from Ambassador Gerard."

Liberty Bell Facsimiles Free. In connection with the coming of the Liberty Bell to St. Louis Sunday, facsimiles of the bell and of the Declaration of Independence are to be given free to St. Louis school children by the Curtis Publishing Co. of Philadelphia and Baron & Molasky of the Pierce Building News Co. Facsimiles of the Declaration of Independence and a picture of Independence Hall, where the declaration was adopted, will be given free to every school pupil Friday and Saturday on application to Baron & Molasky at the Pierce Building.

MONTGOMERY COUNTY, ILL., TO HAVE FIRST HANGING DEC. 17

Public Will Be Barred From Execution of Negro at Hillsboro, Ill., Sheriff Says.

Montgomery County, Ill., on Dec. 17 will have its first legal execution. As a result of the recent controversy in Murphysboro, following the presence of several thousand spectators at a hanging, there will be less than a score admitted to the execution of Jim Comer at Hillsboro.

Sheriff Johnson will exclude the public, save for the number required by statute as witnesses.

Comer, a negro, pleaded guilty this week to the killing of his wife and was sentenced to die.

Mrs. Kruckemeyer Sues for Divorce.
Mrs. May L. Kruckemeyer yesterday filed her second suit to divorce Gustav L. Kruckemeyer, whom she remarried in December, 1913, shortly after divorcing him. She alleges that he associated with another woman and took the woman on long automobile tours. Kruckemeyer, who is a meat packer at 488 North Market street, is being sued for $100,000 damages by Theron S. Doby, an aviator, who alleges the packer alienated the affections of Mrs. Doby.

COMMON SENSE AND HEALTH

COMMON sense tells you that real health cannot be forever dependent upon the artificial stimulation of laxatives and cathartics.

Drugs relieve constipation temporarily, but never cure it. Nujol is odorless and tasteless, absolutely neutral, and is not digested or absorbed into the system. It acts merely as a mechanical lubricant.

Nujol is not a drug. Its use will not give quick, temporary relief. But Nujol is a genuine remedy in that it relieves constipation in the most natural way by lubricating the lining of the intestines, softening the intestinal contents, and thus promoting healthy and normal bowel activity.

SHAKE IN COLLECTION BASKET

Reptile in Envelope When Deacon Opens It.

TOPEKA, Kan., Nov. 2.—A snake in the collection basket at the First Christian Church on a recent Sunday night gave the deacons a fright and caused considerable merriment among the boys of the congregation, all of whom are said to have had advance information of what was to happen. W. T. Oliver was the deacon who, at the close of the service, opened the envelope from which a small garter snake wriggled out among the coins on the table. It is said that one of the Sunday school boys found the tiny reptile in the morning and that it was sold and swapped several times during the services, the last owner agreeing to deposit it in the collection basket on a dare.

"SOCIETY MOVIE" OPENS TONIGHT AT VICTORIA THEATER

"Counted In and Counted Out" to Be Repeated Tomorrow Afternoon and Night.

The melodrama movie, "Counted In and Counted Out," prepared by St. Louisans to be presented for the benefit of the St. Louis Protestant Orphan Home, will be shown to the public for the first time tonight at the Victoria Theater, and will be repeated at a Saturday matinee and Saturday evening.

The "Society Movie," as the film has been called, has been under way for two months. In addition to the main film there will be another showing the Orphans' Home and in addition there will be a music program. Miss Isabel Scott, daughter of Mrs. Ashley D. Scott of 4633 McPherson avenue, and Wyatt Bordix will sing a duet. Miss Scott has a lyric soprano voice of unusual sweetness and this will be her first appearance before a St. Louis audience. Bordix has a tenor voice of excellent quality. Prof. H. de Bernard will be the soloist of the evening.

The principals of the cast are: Marie Moreland, the heroine; Miss Mary Dee Jones, Jack Lenox, the hero; Roland Hoer, Mrs. Moreland, mother of Marie; Mr. Moreland, father of Marie; Daniel G. Taylor, Count Boris, the villain; William Crowell, The Countess, sister of the Count; Mrs. Joseph Dickson Jr., Cabaret dancer; Mrs. Herbert Cost, Maid; Miss Anna Bennett, Detectives; Samuel B. McPheters, Andrew McPheters, Accomplishes of the Count—Oliver Anderson, Eugene Budgett, Chief of Detectives, Samuel E. Allender, Mayor Henry W. Kiel, Himself, The entertainment is being given under the auspices of the officers and Board of Directors of the St. Louis Protestant Orphan Home. Mrs. J. Dwight Dana has been chairman of the entertainment. William LaBeaume is the author of the scenario and J. D. Wooster Lambert, photographed the play. A. J. Lindsay was stage director. The officers and Board of Directors of the home are: Mrs. Elliott K. Ludington, president; Mrs. F. Bush, first vice president; Mrs. Edwin H. Steadman, second vice president; Mrs. Charles Wiggins, third vice president; Mrs. Alexander Robertson, fourth vice president; Mrs. Dwight Dana, recording secretary; Mrs. Charles W. Moore, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Fritz Nisbet, treasurer; Miss Helen Teasdale, assistant treasurer; Mrs. Alden Little, recorder, and William Wilcox, superintendent.

The sale of seats for the performances has been large. Every box has been subscribed. After tonight's performance there will be a dance at the Racquet Club and numerous supper parties.

SOCIETY

MRS. P. TAYLOR BRYAN gave a tea this afternoon at her residence, 446 McPherson avenue, to introduce her debutante daughter, Miss Edmonia Taylor Bryan. Mrs. Henry Clark, Mrs. Bryan's mother, received with Mrs. Bryan, assisted by the hostesses' sisters, Mesdames Lee W. Hagerman, George S. Drake, Misses Mary and Martha Clark. The girls who served were all buds of the season and were Misses Jane Sharpleigh, Isabella Wells, Charlotte Reyburn, Winifred Puget, Grace Taylor, Anne Collins, Julia Tyler, Marie Wright, Marie Church, Ann Lumaghi, Desiree Gore, Roberta Lewis, Cornelia McNair, Georgette Madill, Katherine Pierce and Eloise Higgins. Miss Bryan is the great-granddaughter of the late Col. David D. Mitchell, who established Fort Benton and was associated with the history of St. Louis when it was a trading post. She also is a descendant of Maj. William Christy, one of the pioneers.

Capt. Francis T. Bryan her grandfather, who makes his home with the Taylor Bryans, is in his ninety-first year. He was graduated from the United States Military Academy in the class of 1846.

The "Little Helpers" bazaar, which will be held tomorrow from 10 a. m. to 10 p. m. will be one of the charity affairs of the week of more than ordinary importance. There will be on sale fancy and useful articles of every description, vanity bags, veranda bags and work bags being a specialty. There will be baskets from the California expositions, purchased there by some of the women interested in the annual sale for the benefit of the order. Spaces will be arranged like a French shop and a miniature fashion show will be an attraction. The affair will be in the convent school building at 4012 Washington boulevard. Lunch and supper will be served.

The women of the University Methodist Church, South, will hold a "Saturday Market" at 521 Skinner road from 10 a. m. to 5 p. m. Home-made cakes, pies, bread, rolls, candies, jellies, preserves and fancy articles will be on sale.

The Alumni Association of Kappa Kappa Gamma will be entertained at luncheon at the home of Mrs. E. J. Stewart, 419 Belt avenue, Saturday. Mrs. Leo Grace, Mrs. G. Horton Blackman, Miss Marian Sanders and Miss Marie Bryden will assist.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter R. Medart of 6309 McPherson avenue are spending a fortnight in New York.

Hotel Jefferson will serve a table d'hôte dinner on Thanksgiving day, Thursday evening, Nov. 25, from 6 to 8:30 p. m., at $1.50 per person.

The College Club will hold an informal meeting at Central High School tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock.

Football Men Who Earn Their "Letters" Must Know the Game From A to Z

YALE OFFENSE IMPROVES

But Crimson's Tricky and Diversified Attack Is Superior to Old Eli's.

Blue Warriors Will Not Be Content With Defensive Tactics, Tomorrow.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 19.—The Yale football team, entrenched almost within sight of the stadium, met the Harvard forces bronzed not many miles away, gave themselves up to physical rest today and tried to obtain a calm mental poise in preparation for the football classic tomorrow.

Encouraged by its somewhat unexpected victory over Princeton last Saturday, Yale is approaching the final contest of the season with more confidence than was regarded possible, 10 days ago.

On the other hand, Harvard backers although recognizing the strength and resourcefulness of their opponent, are fairly certain that the crimson not only will make it four straight victories, but will keep the Harvard goal line, across which no blue foot has scrambled in seven years, still unbreached.

Experts agree that each team possesses unusual qualities both on the offensive and defensive and but for the matter of mental equation the contest is one of Yale's brute strength and bulldog tenacity against a lighter crimson eleven well trained in a deceptive and diversified attack.

The kicking department of the two teams are regarded as about equal, although some will follow the opinion that Yale's punter is a trifle the better punter and that Gurney is somewhat better in field goal shots.

Yale to Take Offensive.

Yale was satisfied to remain on the defense against Princeton and let the Tigers beat themselves. The blue will change tactics against Harvard and cut loose with an attack the Yale coaches hope will gain the jump over the crimson early in the game. This is the only way the New Haven people figure Harvard can be Shelinevined.

This week the Yale squad was taught an offensive, a drive that was lacking against the Tigers. Tom Shevlin had the Yale team out for three hours a day drilling new plays into the backfield.

Shevlin expects Max Scovill to replace Bingham at left halfback against the crimson. Scovill was kept out of the Princeton game, as Yale's best line breaker. The Yale coach is perfecting plays in which some of the backfield will run against opposing tackles. New variations of the wing shift against the Tigers are being worked out for Harvard's special benefit.

The Yale coaches are bent on too confident the ball can be rushed over Harvard's goal line, but they believe the team's new attacking strategy will be the ball within easy distance for Otis Gurnsey to pull off his kicking stunt.

While Shevlin devoted most of his time strengthening the eleven's offense, he managed to spare long periods with the backfield and Moseley. The Yale coach is perfecting plays in which some of the backfield will run against opposing tackles. New variations of the wing shift against the Tigers are being worked out for Harvard's special benefit.

From several candidates Shevlin, who better than anyone else knows the Harvard team, selected Moseley for the job. Moseley was on the varsity earlier in the season, but was dropped when he was seen, selected Moseley for the job. MAUPOME DEFEATS HEAL; HIS THIRTEENTH VICTORY

Pierre Maupome, the Mexican wrestler, representing St. Louis in the interstate tournament, defeated H. H. Healy, champion of the world, in his thirteenth victory of the season.

Maupome, who is now in his thirteenth year, is a native of Mexico and has won a total of 13 victories in his career. He is now ranked as one of the best wrestlers in the world.

Maupome's victory over Healy was a significant one, as Healy is considered one of the greatest wrestlers of all time. Maupome's performance was exceptional, and he was praised by the crowd for his skill and determination.

SPOT SAVED BY L.C. DAVIS.

THE daily bard, it seems to us, deserves to have a raise in pay. Who never starts a jingle thus: "Maud Muller on a summer day." —Cincinnati Enquirer.

But still we do not blame the bard. While rounding up his daily bread, for shirking, when it comes hard: "Shoot, if you must, this old gray head!"

Nor would the poet we condemn, When he is strictly on the bum, For getting off this little gem: "The melancholy days are come."

Accused For. We are informed by Coach Alonzo St. Louis of Chicago University that football players are born. Thanks, Alonzo; we had always been under the impression that they grew on football bushes.

Miller Huggins "fears" that Hank Robinson has jumped to the Reds. Just now, however, he is under the impression that they grew on football bushes.

We trust the visiting hotel men will not forget to check their hats and slip the bandit in charge the required honorarium.

Fifteen Washington U. football players recited their "letters" yesterday afternoon. But as they were all the same letter we can't see that it spells anything.

John Touchstone didn't get any "letters" yesterday, but he did get a "let-ter" from the St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

The next time Touchstone coaches a football team under an assumed name he'd better knock wood.

Lift the Lid. Many of the colleges we are glad to see are in favor of removing the restrictions in regard to students picking up a little change by playing summer football. They will get a good deal of work in this way through college and support a wife and two or three children.

Owing to rain the Billikens were unable to go through their usual scrimmage yesterday afternoon. However, the Billikens were able to get a good deal of work in this way through college and support a wife and two or three children.

Keegan will go to Chicago to witness the Illinois-Chicago game. Looks bad for Georgetown.

Might Get Singed. Jim Gilmore has dug up an angel who will furnish the Federal League with little Old New York. We trust said angel has asbestos wings.

A New Wrinkle. Have you heard of the latest wrinkle in delivery? It's called the wrinkle ball and is exploited by a pitcher named Danforth with Louisville in the American Association. To manipulate the wrinkle ball you have to do is rub the ball on the leg of your trousers until the cover becomes loose and wrinkled in the spot where it is rubbed. Then you grab the ball by the wrinkles and hurl it over the fence. The wrinkle ball is a ball coming towards him all wrinkled up that way thinks the pitcher is giving him a high kick and he is so flustered and otherwise flustered that he either strikes out or pops up an infield hit.

Herr Wilhelm's opponent is running through those billiard balls like a sieve.

Chicago - Illinois Battle Expected to Attract Crowd of 27,000 Fans Tomorrow

CHICAGO, Nov. 19.—Extra seats were erected at Stagg Field today to accommodate a crowd of 27,000 persons for the football game between the University of Chicago and the University of Illinois tomorrow.

As every seat has been sold and tickets that have fallen to the hands of scalpers are being held for a premium, there is every indication that the game will witness the largest crowd in the history of the sport.

Coach Zuppke of the Illinois squad plans to lead his team through a brisk drill today as a final workout before the game. Coach Stagg of the Chicago eleven will have his players in the lightest kind of a workout.

The Illinois championship team of last year, but who has been out of the game most of the season because of an injury, will start the game at his old position at left halfback.

Chicago's new star, Gordon, at left halfback, is expected to make a big play. He has been playing at left halfback for the past few weeks.

The invasion of Illinois followers will start tonight with the arrival of a special train from Champaign, carrying more than 1000. Two more specials will arrive tomorrow. In all more than 4000 supporters of the Illinois team to witness the game.

SCALPERS HAVE 300 OF CHICAGO-ILLINOIS TICKETS

CHICAGO, Nov. 19.—After an exhaustive investigation, athletic authorities at the University of Chicago announced today that they had traced the sale of tickets for the Chicago-Illinois football game tomorrow to 300 scalpers.

Norman D. Hasset, 14 graduate of the University of Chicago authorities regarding the ticket scalping.

Investigation shows that officials of the University of Chicago have been had no notice that tickets were being sold for the game.

Tickets for the game, which is expected to draw a crowd of 27,000 persons, are being held at double their face value.

C. B. C. Tackles Eden. The Christian Brothers College soccer eleven is scheduled to play Eden College of Weirton at the college campus tomorrow afternoon.

Eden defeated the Brothers, 2-0. Tomorrow the Christian Brothers will have the full strength in the field and hope to make up for their defeat.

O'Leary Beats Cookson. Dan O'Leary, the veteran pedestrian, last night won a race at the St. Louis race track at the St. Louis race track.

O'Leary, who is 40 years old, won the race in 10 minutes and 10 seconds. He is a former champion of the world.

O'Leary's victory was a significant one, as he is considered one of the greatest pedestrians of all time. O'Leary's performance was exceptional, and he was praised by the crowd for his skill and determination.

Lewis or Thomas—Which Will Be Awarded Football Trophy? Backfield Prize Between This Pair

Other Good 'Ground Gainers on St. Louis Elevens Are Sure to Be Rejected for Lack of Kicking and Forward-Pass Effectiveness.

By W. J. O'Connor.

THE business of determining who is the most valuable backfield man among the major local football teams is something that soon will come up before a commission of newspaper men who have in their power the privilege of awarding the trophy. The question is yet unanswered.

Not being a member of this commission, the writer feels that the subject can be spoken of freely without fear of influencing the vote. So here goes.

The Busch trophy, an annual award, is to be given to the player behind the line in the year. The trophy is awarded to the player who has the most good during the current season.

Only the player of all-around ability has much chance of winning the trophy. The player who is a specialist in one line, such as kicking or punting, is not eligible.

Other Notable Stars. There are other clever backs, notably Ralph Gray and Bill Berry of Washington and Emil Flug and Frankie Cooran of St. Louis. But none of these is depended upon for the kicking and consequently a big part of the burden of all-round helpfulness is taken off their shoulders.

Let's consider, therefore, only the two candidates who qualify through the kicking and punting department.

St. Louis, Lewis, name quite naturally first suggests itself. The retiring Washington captain has been a potent part of the team's success this year and his two goals from placement represented the end of victory by which the Pikers, who were defeated by the Cardinals, were able to win the game.

As a ground-gainer, however, Lewis didn't stand out so prominently. He scored only one touchdown and never featured much as an open field runner. Lewis is only of average speed, moves with an awkward stride, and while anything but easy to tackle, his clumsiness often prevented the necessity of a sure enough tackle by the enemy. He threw the forward pass well, but gets few merit marks for this in as much as the actual game played no great part in Washington's scheme of play.

He was a reliable punter, always gaining height and good average distance. He operated behind the best line in Washington has had in years and had the opportunity to gauge his kicks carefully. Temporarily he was an ideal captain and field leader, a fighter from start to finish, and a hard nut to crack. He never has been withdrawn from a game because of injuries and always is in the thick of the fight.

In two of his games this season he averaged better than 45 yards on his punts, a really remarkable record. Though the merit marks gained in these punts were almost entirely nullified by Tommy's weird work in the Washington backfield.

However, there are mitigating circumstances to be found in Thomas' failure against Washington. He was opposed to the best line in the State and was continually harassed by the opposing line. Thomas is a hard worker, a fighter, and a hard nut to crack. He never has been withdrawn from a game because of injuries and always is in the thick of the fight.

Thomas has all the qualifications of a star and proved himself such in all games but the big battle with Washington. His failure there was not so much his fault as it was the result of the team's failure. He was a hard worker, a fighter, and a hard nut to crack. He never has been withdrawn from a game because of injuries and always is in the thick of the fight.

President Terner's statement, which was made last night, was that Lewis was a hard worker, a fighter, and a hard nut to crack. He never has been withdrawn from a game because of injuries and always is in the thick of the fight.

The Jarr Family

Written for the Post-Dispatch
By Roy L. McCardell

Mr. Jarr Dodges One Scenario
Author Only to Run Into Another One.

"NOW, don't go out tonight, please," remarked Mrs. Jarr, the remarks being worded like a request, but accentuated as a command.

Mr. Jarr paused guiltily in the doorway, and Mrs. Jarr explained the reasons for the request that sounded as a command.

"Maude Hooker is coming here tonight. You know she is just a bride and needs a lot of good advice from someone of experience."

"I don't want to give her any advice," grumbled Mr. Jarr. "Let her find out—that is if you mean ME. If you mean that YOU intend to advise the bride, why should I stand by and be embarrassed? Let me pass!"

"Nobody is asking you to advise them," replied Mrs. Jarr, "and you won't be embarrassed by standing by. But Maude is going to bring her husband with her. He wants you to look at a moving picture play he has written and tell him what you think of it."

"I won't dare tell him," said Mr. Jarr. "Besides, ladies will doubtless be present. Furthermore, why should I have to read anybody's moving picture play? I never do anything to this young fellow. Why, I did not even introduce him to his wife. So let me out."

Mrs. Jarr sighed and permitted him to pass.

When he arrived at Gus' cafe on the corner—for he went there, of course—he found himself attending the supper show, so to speak. For the place was deserted save for Elmer the bartender, who at Mr. Jarr's entrance hid some papers underneath the bar in a guilty manner.

"You are here early, Mr. Jarr," ventured Elmer, in an embarrassed manner. "Generally you ain't here so early."

"I ain't here early now, so far as I know," replied Mr. Jarr. "A little greasy, yes, because I just rushed away from the supper table. But early?—I deny it!"

"Oh, I don't mean early in the morning," explained Elmer, who spoke the pure language perfectly, "but I mean you are early by the clock."

"Oh, I see," said Mr. Jarr. "Yes, I am early, but you'd be early too if somebody was coming to your house to read a photoplay scenario to you."

Elmer flushed a guilty crimson.

"I bin taking lessons how to write scenarios, too," he confessed. "I seen an advertisement when it said no education nor anything was necessary and you could write them moving pictures in your spare time and you could get a hundred dollars apiece for them, so I sent a dollar to learn all about it, and now I know."

"Why don't the people who advertise to teach for $1 write photoplays at $100 apiece, in THEIR spare time?" asked Mr. Jarr.

Elmer didn't know, but feebly inquired if Mr. Jarr would not like to look at his manuscript.

Mr. Jarr gazed at the sheet of foolscap, smudged and written all awry in faded ink.

"Hem!" he remarked finally. "It's written in German, isn't it?"

"Sure," said Elmer, "that's where it will be a big novelty. I bin to see a lot of them in movies and there ain't any of them in German, and there's a whole lot of people here what are German."

"It's a good idea," remarked Mr. Jarr, who was experienced enough to know no one ever asks your advice except he desires to be told what he wants to hear, and no one asks you what you think of his work—artistic, literary or mechanical—but desires to have the effort praised.

Just then they heard a deep breathing behind them—a sort of deep interest. It was Gus, the cafe proprietor, who had come down into the bar from his living quarters upstairs, in his old and silent coppers.

Elmer gave a wheeze of fear and jerked away from the first fruits of his authorship. He expected nothing short of assassination first and losing his position later. Mr. Jarr endeavored to soften the impending blow.

"It's a moving picture scenario Elmer dashed off in his spare time," said Mr. Jarr.

"Let me see," said Gus. "By Golly, there ain't any money in the retail liquor business I say more, and I think I'll sell out, and me and Elmer will write them movi' pictures. I will be the boss, just like now, and Elmer can be my bartender at it."

"At this instant Mr. Slavinsky, the glazier, and Bepler, the butcher, drifted in. They both gave a glance at Elmer's manuscript and declared it would be a screen success.

"I'll loan all of you how to write them in your spare time," said Elmer in a patronizing manner.

"I have no spare time," remarked Mr. Jarr. "I have to go home and read a scenario written by the husband of one of my wife's friends." And he hurried away.

A SINGER who recently passed an evening at the house of a lady stayed late, according to T. H. Bits. As he rose to go the hostess said:

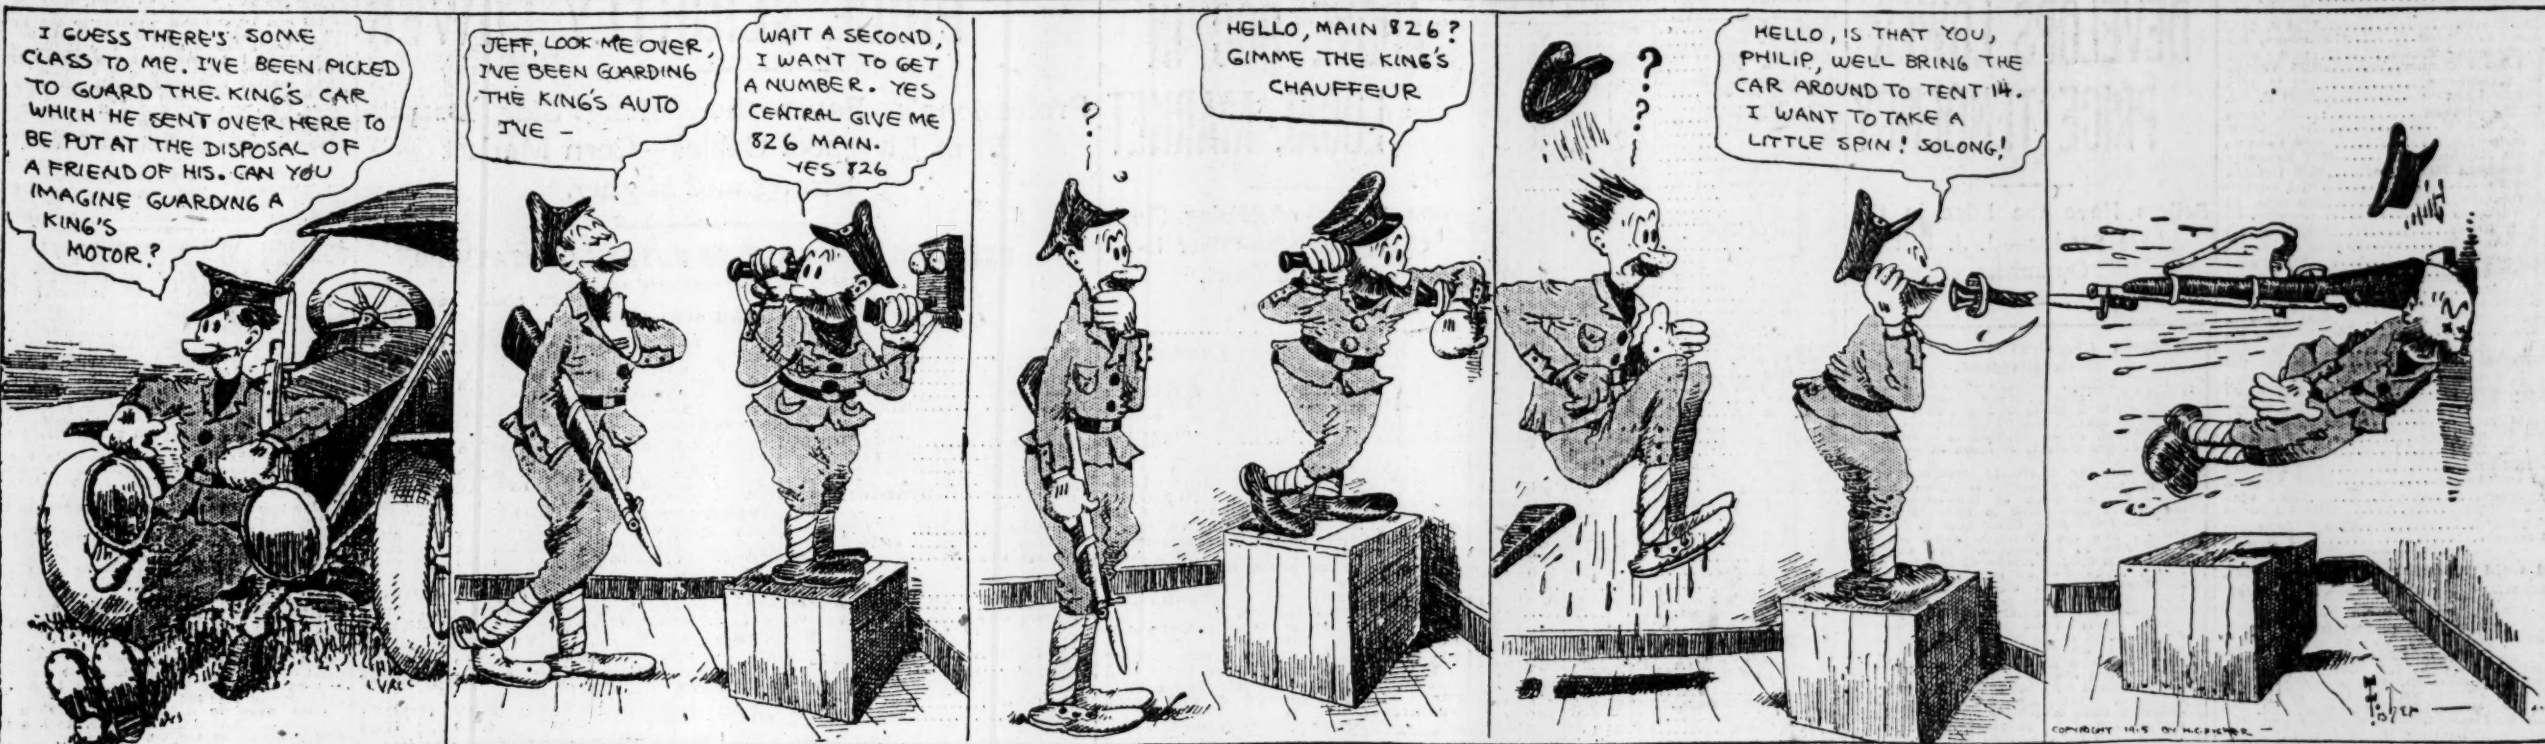

"Pray, don't go yet, Mr. Basso; I want you to sing something for me."

"Oh, you must excuse me tonight; it is very late, and I should disturb the neighbors."

"Never mind the neighbors," answered the lady, quickly; "they poisoned our dog yesterday."

Most men cheerfully run up a charge account with Fate, and then are as astonished and indignant when the bills come in as a feminine bargain fiend.

Well Scattered.

PATRICK MAGINNIS recently got a job on the railway. As a great concession, he was allowed to travel to his work every morning by an express train which obligingly slowed down sufficiently for him to drop off safely.

But the other morning the engine driver forgot and the train dashed through the cutting where the gang was at work.

The foreman thought he would have to do without Pat for the next few hours, but presently, to his surprise, a battered-looking figure approached him and reported himself as Pat.

"Goodness, man," cried the foreman, "and where did you get off?"

Pat turned stiffly, and pointed with one trembling hand to the grassy banks, as he sighed:

"All along there, sor!"

Instead of acknowledging his utter dependence, man foolishly tries to make his stomach jump through a hoop.

The Thrifty Young Man and the Financial Panic.

ONCE upon a time there was a thrifty young man who believed in saving his pennies for a rainy day.

His companions scoffed and jeered at him as they spent their earnings in riotous living, but he kept on soaking his money in the bank just the same.

After many years the rainy day came. It rained so hard that the bank was completely washed away. Or, to put it in less figurative language, the bank busted.

The youths who had squandered their money as fast as they earned it laughed loud and long at the thrifty one. They had got something for their money, so they said.

And so they had. They had acquired a lot of expensive tastes, which now that hard times were upon them, they were not able to gratify and they suffered as much as though they had been deprived of their daily bread, while our hero, who was insured to privations, got along as well as he ever had.

MORAL: Money isn't the only thing you save by saving money.

Sad Days.

BIG sister was reading in her book of poems:

"The melancholy days have come—the saddest of the year."

"Say, sis," broke in her schoolboy brother, "don't pull any of that 'saddest of the year' stuff. With nine examples and a page of grammar to do I know what time of year it is!"

True to Life.

WHAT'S all that noise upstairs?" called the mother. "I thought you were playing house."

"We are, mamma," the little daughter replied. "Johnny is the papa, and he has just come home from the store. I'm arguing with him about money matters."

A man who is 95 years old says it is easy to live a long time. All one has to do is sleep only 4½ hours each day, never eat after 3 p. m. and keep a clear conscience. On that basis most men wouldn't want to live long and the remainder couldn't.

A Diplomatic Retort.

THE drill sergeant was real mustard, and the recruits were having a bad time.

The weather had been very wet, and the parade ground was still slippery. In doing a movement shortly, as an example to his men, the Sergeant slipped and fell full sprawl, and, naturally, the "rookies" could hardly repress their mirth.

Getting up with all the dignity he could muster, the Sergeant's eye fell on Murphy's grinning face.

"Well, you grinning hyena!" he roared. "What's 'urtin' you? Do you see anything funny?"

"No, sir," gurgled Murphy, tactfully. "But, shure, Oi wis just thinkin' what a laugh we cud have had if it had been anywan else save yerself, Sergeant!"
